CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

The Ninth Annual Conference on Educational Problems was held at Morningside College on March 19. Dr. Russell M. Cooper, assistant dean of science, literature and arts at the University of Minnesota, was the featured speaker at the noon luncheon in Dimmitt Hall. His topic was "The Implications of Japanese Education". The theme of the conference was "Adapting Schools to Our Present Day Needs."

Agora, the all-college organization for women, held their annual carnival in the Alumni Gym on Saturday evening, March 19. Refreshment and entertainment booths, sideshows and other features of a carnival were enjoyed by nearly 500 students who attended the event. Dancing concluded the evening's program. The highlights of the evening was the crowning of Miss Helen Ann Bartram, Kappa Zeta Chi candidate, of Sioux City and Duane Hansen, Phi Sigma candidate, of Luverne, Iowa, both junior students, as queen and king, respectively, by Dr. Roadman. The proceeds of over $200 will be used for Agora projects.

The Home Economics Department recently has organized a club for women interested in that field. So far eleven girls have signed up.

Dr. and Mrs. Graber have received word of the death of Ruth Winston, year old daughter of former Prof. and Mrs. John S. Winston, now of Rollo, Mo. The baby died of pneumonia on Tuesday, March 22, and burial was on Friday, March 25. Prof. Winston was assistant in the physics department for two years and Mrs. Winston assisted in the biology laboratory.

MEET MORNINGSIDE

On Monday, April 25, the June graduates of the Sioux City high schools will be the guests of the alumni and faculty at a get acquainted day on the campus.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Nodland and the three high school principals, seniors will be excused at 12 noon. Busses provided by the college will transport the students to Dimmitt Hall where lunch will be served.

Students will sign cards designating their special interests. Demonstrations will be presented by the science, athletic, dramatic and speech and the music departments.

A tour of the entire campus will be conducted by guides from the Morningside College student body.

Morningsiders have felt that Sioux City high school students have not had an opportunity to really know their home college. We're proud of the improvements Morningside has made in the last few years. We want the home town students to know that Morningside is a living and growing college; we want them to see the college in action.

LET'S TALK MORNINGSIDE

Do you recall this solemn oath that you made when you were initiated into the Tribe of the Sioux back in _____?

"Maidens and Warriors both valiant and true,

Have pledged their hearts' blood to the tribe of the Sioux.

And you must come back to her pow-wows each year

And hold her commands to be sacred and dear.

And send back what braves or what maidens be found

In the lands that you win—to this old hunting ground."

Morningside is still interested in the best students in every community to carry on these traditions—the same traditions which you established. Have you carried out this pledge for next year? Why not start today by telephoning or calling on a high school graduate whom you think would be a credit to M. C. Be sure to write a card or letter to the Alumni or Admissions Office listing the names and addresses of your candidates. Remember, you Morningsiders are our best representatives.

WHAT CAN MORNINGSIDE COLLEGE DO FOR JOHN AND MARY?

It is a natural question for prospective students and their parents to ask, when considering a particular college, "What can this college do for John or Mary?" It is an important question to ask, and we would like to apply this question as a yardstick for evaluating Morningside College.

First of all, Morningside College can give John and Mary a good, general education. A well-trained faculty, dedicated to Christian principles, offers majors in Biology, Business Administration, Secretarial Science, Economics, Accounting, Chemistry, History, Home Economics, Mathematics, Music, Philosophy, Physical Education, (for both men and women) Physics, Religion, Sociology, Languages and Speech. John and Mary may prepare for teaching in either the elementary or secondary school, or do pre-professional work in medicine, law, dentistry, the ministry, and other professions. (Twenty-eight per cent of the students graduating enter professional schools or are doing graduate study.) They can live and study in the intimacy of a small college where the instructor knows them and they know their teachers and their fellow students.

Morningside College offers John and Mary a varied program which trains them for contemporary living in a dynamic society in which the United States has become a world power. More than that, it offers them a Christian education. Through the well-rounded religious program of the college, and through its religious organization, such as Kappa Chi, a national religious fraternity, the student is led to feel the importance of Christ and His way of life. At the present time there are 49 students preparing for full-time church vocations.

Music, too, fills an important part in the life of John and Mary at Morningside College. The a capella choir of 50 voices is one of the most outstanding choral groups in the United States. Its concerts are occasions of great interest. A pioneer among a capella choirs, Morningside was one of the first colleges in the country to feature this type of singing, and the choir has made extensive tours for many years. If John and Mary have special interests in music, voice, and piano lessons, ensemble, and instrumental groups, Morningside Conservatory offers them a splendid means for training and growth.

John and Mary certainly will be interested in athletics. This interest may be furthered by participation, or by merely cheering from the sidelines. When the 1949-50 basketball season comes along, Morningside will probably have facilities for athletics and physical education equal to that of the best. The college has always been an outstanding member of the North Central Conference. However, participation in athletics is not limited to those who are interested in inter-collegiate sports. A strong program of intramural sports is offered to all students, affording them a chance to improve skills, to develop strong bodies, as well as keen minds. For John, this is done by his participation in touch football, volleyball, basketball, softball, track, wrestling, horseshoe, and badminton; and for Mary, it is accomplished by her participation in volleyball, softball, tennis, swimming, archery, badminton, and field hockey. Offering intercollegiate football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis and golf, Morningside College tries to make available to John a variety of athletic competition.

Morningside College offers splendid opportunities for students who plan to enter the field of newspaper and free-lance writing. In addition to these courses, which offer the broad general education recommended by schools of journalism at the large universities, Morningside offers special technical courses to enable the student to embark immediately upon his professional career.

Realizing that speech plays a very necessary part in determining whether John or Mary lives a well-adapted, successful life, Morningside College offers a wide diversity of speech activities. Whether it be debating, drama, oratory, discussion or extemporaneous speaking, John and Mary can gain, through speech, the ability to stand on their feet and express their ideas.

Also, through various programs such as "Here's to Youth", "Grab Bag Theatre", "Morningside Commentaries", and "Headlines in Chemistry", Morningside College has one hour and thirty minutes per week on radio stations KTRI and KSCJ-FM in Sioux City. John and Mary can take part in announcing, in acting, and in the general production of radio programs.

To keep abreast with its expanding curricula, Morningside has embarked upon a five year building program. Fulfilling the first of its projects was the new A. W. Jones Hall of Science, dedicated in May, 1948. This ultra-modern and well-equipped building is one of the finest science halls to be found on the campus of any college with a like enrollment.

The ground-breaking ceremony for the new George M. Allee gymnasium will take place on April 6. When completed this half million dollar structure with its basketball court, its auditorium facilities, and its swimming pool will meet not only the physical needs of Morningside College, but all of Northwest Iowa. Also, included in the building agenda is a new men's dormitory, a remodeling of the Alumni Gymnasium into a modern library and museum, and a fine arts building.

What did you say Morningside could do for John and Mary? Well, you see,—it can provide them a well-rounded education at a college that is fully accredited, where superior instructors take a personal interest in its students, and where a Christian atmosphere prevails at all times at this college where "friendliness links learning to living".

ONAWA GIRLS WIN

IN DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Alumni Gym was packed with enthusiastic fans from the surrounding territory who came to cheer for their favorite team in the Girls' District Tournament on February 17 and 19.

A well-drilled sextet from Onawa coasted to victory over Akron, 53 to 41, in the final game on Saturday evening to earn for themselves a berth in the girls' state tournament.

TIMM APPOINTED SYMPHONY

ORCHESTRA LEADER

An article in the State Times at Baton Rouge, La., reports that the Louisiana State University 50-piece symphony orchestra "presented a commendable program in its opening concert of the season,

Dr. Everett Timm

January 18, under a new, young conductor Dr. Everett Timm, better known to local audiences as a flutist. In his new role he won a round of applause and well wishes for a successful season. Although young in appearance and years, Dr. Timm was very much at home in the role of conductor."

A graduate of Morningside in 1936, Everett received his Ph. D. from the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, N. Y. and has received training in conducting at the Juilliard school in New York City. Dr. Timm is a former instructor at Morningside College and a former director of the KSCJ orchestra.

Mrs. Timm (Jeanne Anderson, '40), who has been visiting her parents in Sioux City the past two months, will leave soon for Baton Rouge with Gary, aged 5, and month old Larry Milo.

FACULTY LEARN WHAT ALUMNI DO

A committee composed of Dean Tweito, Dean Emerita Lillian Dimmitt and Florence Kingsbury, Alumni Secretary, reported to the Morningside Faculty at their March 9 meeting on what Morningside grads are doing since they left the campus.

Dean Tweito had made an occupational study beginning with the class of 1889.

Of the 722 graduating between 1940 and 1949, 200 have entered professional schools or are doing graduate study, about 28% of the total number.

Florence Kingsbury, speaking for the Alumni Office, gave further data concerning the last five classes. Her statistics included the number of grads in each class and the number in each of the various occupations. More students had entered teaching than any other profession.

Miss Dimmitt sketched the historical background of Morningside College and told of some of the problems they had to face in the early days. The present Conservatory building held the entire college but the impetus was not over the construction of additional buildings as much as it was over the organization into departments. The organization of departments seemed to arouse pride and wholesome competition among the faculty. A few departments were organized to connect up with graduate schools and other fragments of departments were attached to them.

For a library there were only a few books. Miss Ferguson, of the German Department, canvassed Sioux City, calling on people with German names to contribute funds with which to buy books for her department. Not to be outdone other teachers followed suit. Thus the departmental libraries were built up. When a full time librarian was hired later, her biggest problem was to get the departments to give up their libraries to be catalogued with the regular books.

The problem of accreditation was a real one. The college was first accredited by the University Senate of the Methodist Church, then second by the University of Iowa. However, this did not mean much, as the University did not have its present-day rating. Accreditation from the University of Chicago meant the most and Morningside became the fourth school in the state of Iowa to receive this (even before the University of Iowa).

There was no publicity, no Admissions office, so the faculty worked to get students. They went to Sunday School conventions in the county, teachers' meetings and Old Settlers' picnics; and if asked to speak they always had something to say about Morningside. Then they followed up these contacts with personal calls.

Miss Dimmitt then told of outstanding alumni through the years, giving personal recollections of each.

MAROON COACHED TEAMS

RATE HIGH

Former basketball coach "Honie Rogers" travelled to Iowa City, Ia. the week of March 14 to watch the teams of three of his Morningside proteges perform on the floor of the University fieldhouse in the Iowa State basketball tournament. The teams competing with the other top teams in Iowa were those of Sioux Center, coached by Frances Jones, '42, formerly of Hinton; Fort Dodge, tutored by Wayne (Connie) Goodman, '35, and Moorhead, with Ival Outhouse, '37, as coach. Sioux Center and Fort Dodge were eliminated in first round competition but Moorhead went on to win third place in the State by downing Winfield in the consolation game on Saturday evening. From Moorhead comes the report that the triumphant Vikings received a tremendous welcome from the home town folks on their return home on Sunday. The Moorhead cagers boast a season's record of 32 victories in 33 games.

MAROONS TIP ALUMNI IN HOME GAME

The Morningside College cagers played a post season basketball tilt March 11 at Alumni gym when they met a team composed of former Maroon basketball greats. It was the last home appearance of the Maroons this season before they left for the national A. A. U. tournament at Oklahoma City March 13 to 19. Funds obtained from this game were used to help defray expenses of sending the team, as a representative of Sioux City and Morningside College, to the A. A. U. tournament.

The All-Stars, coached by Doug Bragdon, were made up of former Morningside college basketball players and included Gale Stevens, Jack Larson, Don ("Dusty") Rhoades, Bill Pepper, John Helm, Loren ("Tut") Clark, and Johnnie Williams. Bob Held was expected to play, but was sidelined with a severe cold.

The fourth quarter began with the score tied at 41-all and was a seesaw affair until Dick Wiedenfeld tied the count at 55 to 55 on a lay-up shot. In making his shot Dick was fouled by "Tut" Clark. With 20 seconds remaining, Dick sank a free-throw to give the Varsity a 56 to 55 win over the All-Stars. The game was played before a comfortable crowd of several hundred fans.

Scoring honors for the evening went to Gale Stevens of the grads who put together 11 field goals and four free-throws for 26 points. John Wiedenfeld led the victors with 12 points.

Closing the season for the last time at Morningside were Bob Horsfall, Don Coome, Howard Harmon, and Henry Langstraat.

GROWERS OF BEARDS FOR SADIE HAWKINS' DAY

SADIE HAWKINS' DAY COMING

According to the Dogpatch Gazette, April 20 has been set aside as Sadie Hawkins' Day, the one day in the year when students and faculty alike let down their hair (so to speak) and join in the hilarious activities which fill the day. Costumes that beggar description are everywhere in evidence as contestants vie for prizes awarded for the best characterizations of Mammy Yocum, Pappy Yocum, Li'l Abner, and Daisy Mae. The beards, raised at great risk of social ostracization by courageous males, are carefully measured and the winner is acclaimed the hero of Dogpatch Hollow.

The "Gazette" describes as follows the preparation of the Kickapoo Joy Juice to be served at the dance in the evening.

"Kickapoo Joy Juice is being brewed for the coming Sadie Hawkins' Day. All owners of small dogs, cats, automobiles, and corn are warned to keep these items under a watchful eye. These items will be needed in large quantities for the new batch of Kickapoo Joy Juice and the time that they are needed is now. So Beware! the moonlight procurement team of Dogpatch is already in action. Their skill in requisitioning and acquiring these items is unsurpassed. Tire, oil, gas, and shift knobs are stripped from automobiles. Dogs and cats are disappearing from the area. The price of corn has risen due to the disappearance of the commodity from the market. It was reported that the anatomy department of Morningside College had to order a new cadaver, but whether or not this is a result of the Dogpatch procurement team has yet to be confirmed."

MAROON CAGERS RATE FIRST IN STATE, SECOND IN CONFERENCE

The final game of the 1948-49 basketball season on February 25 at Cedar Falls resulted in a 62-42 defeat for the crippled Maroons at the hands of the Iowa State Teachers' Panthers.

A win would have given Morningside the championship of the North Central Conference and the loss of this crucial game placed them as runner-up in the final standings.

The Maroons started the game as the decided underdog because of the illness of two members and the loss of Clayton Bristow, due to a wrist injury. This, together with a "cold streak" when the ball, time and again, rolled off the rim instead of dropping into the basket, accounted for the Maroons' lack in scoring.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE TO START

Morningside College will begin the most intensive spring practice campaign in the history of the college on April 4 at 3:30, with an anticipated 70 boys reporting. Daily workouts will take place from 3:30 to 6:00, five days per week, with intra-squad scrimmages at 2:00 o'clock every Saturday. According to Coach Allen, "It will never rain on Eass Field between the hours of 3:00 and 6:00 this spring."

Coach Allen says: "Any boy who has ever played football or who has the slightest notion that he would like to play football, should report. It's impossible to become proficient in football by just practicing in the fall—because of the time element. You need five or six weeks of intensive drills in the spring to get results. Next year's squad will be determined on the results of our spring football campaign. Also, those making the early season training table will be selected on the basis of spring drills."

Coaches Allen and Pritula expect to discover those who really desire to play football, and these spring sessions will give the boys an opportunity to demonstrate their fondness for the sport. After viewing movies meticulously this winter, the coaches stated explicitly that every position will be open.

The disadvantage of not knowing the squad personnel will be eliminated with this spring ball, and early fall practice which begins on August 29. A regulation game with a nearby college is being tentatively arranged to complete the spring drills, or a regulation intra-squad game will take place.

MORNINGSIDE PLAYS IN

A. A. U. TOURNAMENT

Coach Buckingham and the Maroon cage squad left March 12 for Kansas City to see the finals of the N. A. I. B. that evening. They went on to Oklahoma City the next day to play in the national A. A. U. tournament there, where they lost a 62-55 thriller to East Central College of Oklahoma. A brilliant rally worked with a fast-breaking attack in the second half failed to put Morningside in the win column.

Led by Bob Norris, Bob Horsfall and Howard Harmon, each with 10 points, and center Dick Wiedenfeld with 13—nine on free throws—Morningside once drew up to a 46-45 deficit but never did catch the tall Oklahomans.
