at Morningside College and was on the campus nine times.

I am convinced that all problems can be solved by patient, co-operative, and prayerful efforts when solutions are attempted upon the basis of facts. Northwest Iowa and the Sioux City trade territory offer the most far-reaching challenge to a college of any territory of the middle west.

I am happy to be privileged to offer my total of energy and devotion to the inviting and challenging task which is offered by my call to the presidency of Morningside College for which I covet the prayers and good will of all.

DEAN JOHNSON VIEWS COLLEGE OF THE FUTURE

As we stand at the threshold of a new year, we share the hope of a greater Morningside College. There are many evidences of progress in the improved instructional and library facilities, assemblies in contemporary affairs and fine arts, inspiring Wednesday Chapels in the campus church, student counseling to provide individual guidance through the educational adventure. The faculty is studying recent trends in higher education and adjusting the program to present needs. New features include a more flexible field of concentration in place of the former major-minor plan, honors work or tutorial instruction for qualified students, and comprehensive examinations at the end of the senior year. Your suggestions and support are urgently needed in these and other developments. You will surely unite with us in building the Morningside College of the future that shall be worthy of her heritage.

PAUL E. JOHNSON.

PRESIDENT ROADMAN GREETES ALUMNI

My greetings to the Alumni and friends of Morningside College are not entirely professional. I have had long and intimate acquaintance with Morningside's personnel and life.

As a boy on a farm at Dyke, Iowa, I journeyed to Parkersburg to hear President Wilson S. Lewis during the time of his presidency of the College. In 1908 I was a member of the Debate Team from Upper Iowa University which debated a team at Morningside composed of E. R. Brown and Walter Johnson. It is only fair that the extent of Upper Iowa's defeat should be told by the members of the Morningside team.

In 1921 while I was teaching Bible and Rural Sociology at Upper Iowa University, I conducted a seminar in social leadership

MUSICAL NOTES

Three new teachers have been added to the conservatory staff. Mr. Thomas Canning of Brookville, Pennsylvania, succeeds Mrs. Lucy D. Kolp, (deceased, June 26, 1936) in theory and organ. He received his Mus. B. degree from Oberlin Conservatory, majoring under Normand Lockwood, and studying organ with George O. Lillick. Mr. Canning has written interesting compositions, one of which will be played by the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra at the next concert.

Miss Florence Autenrieth from Kendallville, Indiana, is 'cello instructor. She holds the Mus. B. degree from the American Conservatory in Chicago, studying with Hans Hess, and Alfred Wallenstein. She was formerly soloist with the American Conservatory Orchestra and also with the Fort Wayne Symphony Orchestra, and is now principal cellist of the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Margaret Brower has recently been appointed instructor in the piano department of the conservatory. Miss Brower received her Mus. B. degree from Morningside College in 1934, and has already demonstrated marked ability. She succeeds Miss Eunice Wahlstrom, who died October 23, 1936.

Mr. MacCollin conducts two choirs of sixty voices each, which alternate in singing at the Wednesday morning Chapels in the Grace Church. In February, the choir will make an extended tour through Oklahoma and Texas, singing in many of the largest cities, and later in the spring will make a shorter tour through north-west Iowa. The combined choirs are preparing a concert program to be given in Sioux City.

The College Band of forty members is making a splendid reputation this year under the direction of Everett Timm, instructor of wind instruments at the Conservatory. The band has appeared before the high school groups in several neighboring towns, and is planning another tour later in the year.

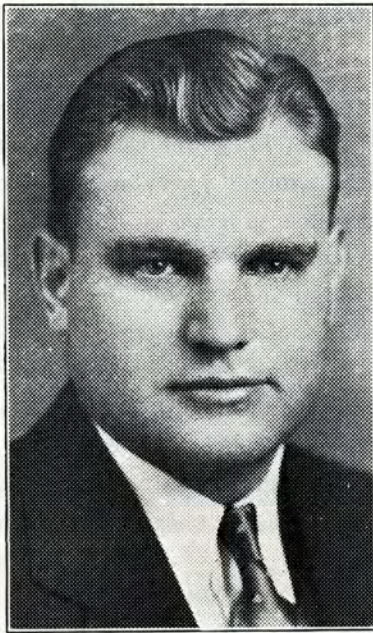

Increasing recognition is coming to the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra, which is directed by Mr. Leo Kucinski, head of the violin department. Mr. Kucinski is also conductor of the Symphony Orchestra at Lincoln, Nebraska. Recently he was guest soloist of the Symphony Orchestra at Waterloo, Iowa, and appeared in a violin recital at Wahoo, Nebraska.

There are several groups of string ensembles at the College: the Faculty String Quartette, the Faculty String Trio, and other ensemble groups composed of students. These groups furnish music for many social events in Sioux City. About two hundred engagements were fulfilled in the city last year.

The Sioux City Concert Course is presenting at the Orpheum this season a series of seven notable concerts. The opening number was a concert by the world renowned violinist, Fritz Kreisler. The Sioux City Symphony Orchestra made its first appearance in concert with Rudolph Ganz, eminent pianist, as soloist. For the third number, the combined choirs of Sioux City, under the direction of Mr. Paul MacCollin, presented Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." Other artists in the series are Frank Forest, tenor, Poldi Mildner, pianist, Ria Ginster, soprano, and Raya Garbousova, cellist.

NEW BUSINESS MANAGER

Harvey D. Willson, Denver, Colorado, is assuming his duties of Business Manager at Morningside College on January 1. Mr. Willson is a graduate of the University of Denver and has had four years of college teaching experience at the University of Denver and Dakota Wesleyan University. He also has had business experience in accounting firms and as treasurer of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance office at Denver. While in Denver he was chairman of the membership committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

PSYCHOLOGY APPLIED TO LIFE

The Psychology department seeks to apply psychology in daily living, vocational planning, and human understanding. Two studies are being made on the attitudes of college students toward their parents. The first concerns the extent to which students are dominated by their parents or are independent in making their decisions. The other investigates the extent to which students dislike or are very appreciative of their parents. These studies should reveal how well students get along in college when removed from parental supervision.

Earl E. Emme, professor of Psychology in the college, has been elected chairman of the psychology section of the Iowa Academy of Science.

NOTED ORNITHOLOGIST

Doctor T. C. Stephens, Professor of Biology in Morningside College, attended the American Ornithologists' Union which met at Pittsburgh, October 20 to 22, and the Wilson Ornithological Club which met in Chicago, November 27-28. He has been Editor of the Wilson Bulletin, a leading magazine of Field Ornithology, for the past twelve years. One of his articles appears in a recent number of Nature Notes.

CHEMISTRY LEAVES THE BARRACKS

After eighteen years of temporary residence in The Barracks, the Chemistry Department has now moved to a better location in the rear of the gymnasium. A modern system has been installed for the laboratory tables which provides water, gas, drainage, and ventilation all under a central hood which the students are finding very convenient. Professor Coss is still looking for a blower which will not corrode under chemical fumes.

ENGINEERS MOVE AHEAD

Engineering continues a popular vocation. Despite the stories of engineers at gas pumps and parading in lion skins, it attracts a large number of men at Morningside.

Recent developments in the Engineering courses include the series of lectures and power plant inspection trips given by the engineering staff of the Sioux City Gas & Electric Company, and the practical Aeronautics work in airplane repair and rigging, engine inspection and tuning, and practical flying at the Hassenger-Heitman Flying School at the Hanford Airport.

The Eleventh Annual Engineers Night was held on December 4 attracting a large number of interested patrons. The fellows were highly complimented for their skill in presenting a program of popular and technical interest.

Dr. M. E. Graber, professor of Physics in the college, has delivered papers at state and district teachers' association meetings this year.

MAROON GRIDDERS AT MID-POINT OF CONFERENCE

Coach J. M. Saunderson, in his 25th year at Morningside, brought a squad of twenty-six men to fourth position in the North Central Conference.

For the season the Maroons won three and lost four, and in conference competition they won two and lost three. The record shows victories over South Dakota State 13-0, North Dakota State, 7-0, and Wayne Normal, 7-0. The defeats were handed the Morningsiders by South Dakota U., 26-12, Omaha U., 13-0, Iowa State Teachers, 6-0, and Hardin Simmons University, 59-0. North Dakota U. again won the conference with South Dakota U. second, North Dakota State, third, Morningside, fourth. South Dakota State, Omaha and Iowa State Teachers finished at the bottom of the ladder.

The features of the season for the Maroon gridgers were their brilliant homecoming victory over North Dakota State and the long trip to Abilene, Texas, where they played Hardin-Simmons. The Texas trip was the longest ever taken by a Morningside athletic team. The boys left on Wednesday before Thanksgiving, and returned the following Sunday, covering over 2,000 miles on the trek.

MORNINGSIDE CAGERS LOOK GOOD

Coach Glen ("Honie") Rogers' basketball aces show promise of being one of the strongest teams in the conference. Last week they captured the Sioux Falls College tournament, which had Sioux Falls, Augustana, and South Dakota State as entries. In winning this meet the Maroons turned in some brilliant performances, defeating Sioux Falls College in the first game 45-31, and Augustana in the finals 37-29.

Next week the Morningsiders are themselves hosts to 14 other teams in a three-day intercollegiate tournament, December 31 and January 1 and 2. The Maroons are an even choice to capture this meet, though competition is exceedingly keen. Following this tourney, Morningside swings into its conference schedule, tangling with South Dakota U. at Vermillion, January 8.

He comes to the faculty after four years teaching in the Pacific Junior College of Los Angeles, California, and two years in Central College, McPherson, Kansas. At Central College, Mr. Miller also served as Dean of Men. With his other work this year, he is coaching the Morningside debate squad.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT STRENGTHENED

Professor James E. Kirkpatrick, Ph.D., University of Iowa, who came to the head of the department a year ago, is developing a strong program in education. He says: "I am happy to be a part of Morningside College and am enthusiastic over the possibilities of the Education Department. Before accepting this position I frequently heard the comment, 'Morningside puts out good teachers,' and since coming to the campus I see the unique advantages which the college has in training well-qualified teachers."

Miss Marcia McNee, A.M., University of Chicago, who came to us from a similar position at Upper Iowa University, is the new instructor in Elementary Education. Miss McNee supervises the practice-teaching of the elementary teachers at Longfellow school, and offers the courses in Elementary Methods and Management, Primary Methods, Teaching of Reading and Arithmetic, Children's Literature, and Child and Adolescent Psychology. The addition of Miss McNee to the staff has made it possible to extend the offerings of the Department of Education to include the training of teachers for the primary grades.

NEW INTEREST IN SPEECH AND DRAMATICS

Miss Ruth E. Miller is awakening new interest in speech and dramatics at Morningside College. The speech classes are crowded and the dramatic work is holding the attention of both college and community. Miss Miller is a graduate of Cornell College at Mount Vernon, Iowa, where she was outstanding in the field of dramatic production. She has taught dramatics at Dakota Wesleyan University the last two years, and during the past summer was instructor at the Cornell College Summer Session. At Morningside College she is also Social Director of the Women's Residence Halls.
