Football Prospects Good

Spring football opened on April 12 at the college and head football coach, Clayton Drouillard, is optimistic over prospects for next fall. Among those reporting were 21 lettermen from the 1954 squad, 4 former players back from service and freshman coach Mike Fleming's undefeated team.

Returning lettermen are tailback Bob Meinhardt of Mapleton and fullback Darold Puff of Rolfe, an all conference selection in 1954. Onawa's Vern Wyland will be after his 3rd varsity letter. Bob Buckley of Sac City has won 2 letters as an understudy to Buck Miller and should make a strong bid for starting quarterback position.

Sophomore letterman backs, Dutch Bryan of Onawa, Ronnie Fredricksen from South Sioux City and Cliff Hinrichs from Cole-ridge, Nebraska provide the Maroons with experience in the backfield. Connie Hove of Hawarden and George Nassif of Sioux City East will be trying for second letters.

Line coach Gene Asprey has starting tackles Buddy Mount and Ray Clark of Sioux City Central. Al Lindgren of Albert City is to be shifted to guard. Sophomore letterman tackles, Jim Smith of South Sioux City, Dick Kjos of East and guards, Chuck Phenix of Marshall, Minnesota and Rick Hartnett of Heelan, Sioux City. From the Collegian Reporter

Why Would Anyone Attend Morningside?

Because Morningside students have numerous social agencies in Sioux City in which to do field work.

Because Morningside is the only liberal arts college in Iowa to have a certified public accountant as a full-time staff member.

Because Morningside's Conservatory of Music is one of the five liberal arts colleges in Iowa to be accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music.

Because Morningside has a larger telescope than any other college in the tri-state area.

Because Morningside is the only college in the United States to offer a livestock marketing and business administration major.

Because Morningside is the only liberal arts college in Iowa to be in a conference with state schools. There are five in our conference.

Because five out of the seven pre-medical students now in graduate school are in the upper one-third of their classes.

Because Morningside has the cultural advantages of Sioux City, including the Sioux City symphony and concert series which is available to students.

Because Morningside had the largest percentage increase in freshmen of any school in Iowa last fall.

Because there has been almost $2,000,000 in construction the last eight years, with immediate plans to remodel the conservatory and to convert Alumni gym into a library.

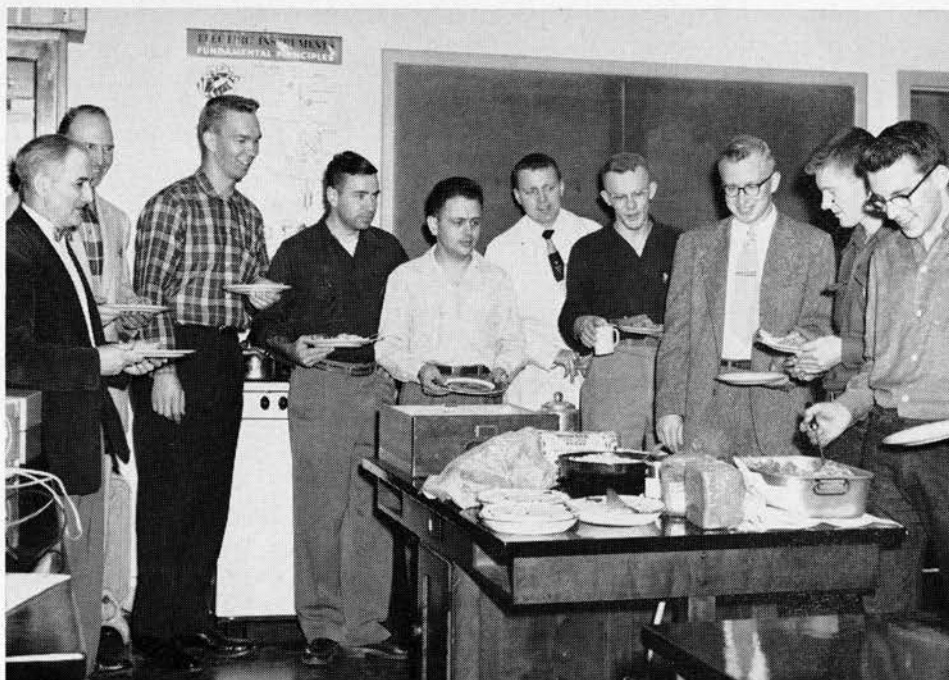

Because Morningside's capital funds have increased one million dollars in the past eight years. A plan was recently adopted by the Board of Trustees to raise the salary of each faculty member $100 a year for ten years.

Because Morningside is one of the five colleges in Iowa to be accredited by the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education, and because Morningside student teachers can teach in the Sioux City school system.

Because Morningside has an unusually fine mixture of students of different races and religions.

Because the cost of attending Morningside is very favorable when compared with other private schools on its level. Board, room and tuition per year is $920, compared with $1200 at Cornell (including fees), $1103 at Drake, $1400 at Grinnell (including fees) and $1130 at Coe.

Because for every $2 paid by Morningside students, $1 more is secured by gifts to cover operating costs. Out of $341,000 tuition income (including summer school), $299,000 is spent for salaries alone.

Because some of the nation's top leaders are graduates of Morningside. These include the international president of the Farm Bureau, a former dean of the Drew Theological seminary who was an editor of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, the president emeritus of the University of Michigan, deans and department heads at many of the top schools in the country (Ohio University, Iowa University, Idaho University, North Carolina University, Oberlin College, Michigan State College, University of New Hampshire, Vermont University, Wisconsin University and others.) Other outstanding alumni include a former chief of the foreign news service of the New York Herald Tribune, a former editor of the Des Moines Register who won the Pulitzer prize for the best editorial in 1937, the vice-president of the Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa), a United States representative, the director of the United States Field and Wildlife service, the chief U. S. signal officer, a past Iowa Supreme Court judge—the list could go on endlessly.

The above editorial appeared in the Collegian Reporter. It was written by Jack Hall of Rockwell City, editor of the student magazine. Feeling it would be of interest to alumni we are re-printing it through the courtesy of Jack and the Collegian Reporter.
