View Science Exhibit

More than 1,200 persons including visiting high school seniors, viewed the two-day science exposition at Morningside College Thursday and Friday, April 26 and 27.

Friday evening about 400 saw it after some 500 attended the exposition Thursday night. High school seniors from Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota who were in Sioux City for the two visitation days which the college sponsored, viewed the exhibit during the day. The public exhibitions were held in the evening.

The emphasis of this year's display, the 24th annual exposition sponsored by the college, was on items of practical use. Lecturers, students and faculty were stationed at each booth to explain the exhibits.

Home Concert By Choir

_____M___

The Morningside College a cappella choir, under the direction of Prof. Paul MacCollin, presented its home concert Wednesday evening, April 4, at Grace Methodist Church.

The first part of the program was devoted to more formal sacred compositions ranging from the classical works of Bach and Corsi to the modern religious music of Lekberg. Spirituals and other representative folk music comprised the last part of the program.

Several soloists sang special religious songs. Emery Stewart, '35, a member of the conservatory faculty, sang a baritone solo, and Jack Wolff of Sioux City played a violin selection.

Two other concerts, at First Methodist Church and Whitfield Methodist Church, were given earlier in the week.

The choir recently returned from a four day tour of sixteen northwest Iowa towns where the choir presented its concerts at schools and churches.

The Morningside organization, which is recruited from the student body of the college, was one of the pioneer choral groups in unaccompanied singing and is known throughout the country for its unusually fine presentation of sacred and secular music.

CAMPUS NEWS

On Monday, March 22, the fifty-piece Morningside band embarked on its annual trip into the surrounding territory where Prof. Robert Lowry and his band played to near capacity audiences. The varied program presented consisted of semi-classical, modern, and typical band music. Especially popular in the high schools in the territory was the appearance of Miss Lynn Holland, baton twirler, featured in a march number with the band. "Overture to Romeo and Juliet" and "Death and Transfiguration" made up the more classical portion of the program. Equally well received were "Fantasy," a trumpet solo by Karl Rogosch and a trombone quartet, "Trombone Troubadours." A home concert by the band will be presented in the near future.

Morningside was the honored host for the annual conference of the Iowa Council on Family Relations which was held at Lillian E. Dimmitt Hall on April 6 and 7. Theme of the conference was "Resources for Effective Family Living." At an all-college convocation in Grace Church, Dr. Evelyn Miller Duval, noted author and lecturer in the field of family relations, was guest speaker.

Moonlight and Roses was the theme of the elegant Dorm Formal which was held in Dimmitt Hall on Saturday evening, March 31.

The annual occasion, which was attended by approximately seventy five couples, is one of the highlights of the social year. The theme and decoration of the party had been kept a secret and as the guests entered the dining room, they were pleasantly surprised by the warm, blue-hued atmosphere as they discovered they were in a garden eating in the moonlight. A white picket fence surrounded the spot, with roses entwined in the fence and lattice work. Stars hung low in the artificial sky and twinkled brilliantly as the reflected light from spot lights hit them. After dinner the guests and their dates inspected the coeds' rooms which were then in their best attire, as were the residents and their escorts.

A popular textbook by Prof. William H. Roberts, instructor in psychology at Morningside College since 1946, has been translated into German and now is being distributed in the American zone of occupied Germany and Austria.

Titled Psychology You Can Use, the work is an elementary guide book to psychology which has become well known throughout the country. It was reprinted extensively by the armed forces during World War II and distributed widely among personnel of the armed forces.

Prof. Roberts also is the author of a textbook on ethics, The Problem of Choice, and of numerous articles for educational journals. He holds a doctor's degree from Northwestern University.

Talks on college life and special music programs were given by ninety Morningside College students and faculty members Sunday, April 7 at sixty seven northwest Iowa Methodist churches. The participation in morning worship services at area churches was connected with Sunday being designated a day of national observance in Methodism. The observance is coordinated with the interdenominational movement of Christian higher education of the National Council of Churches.

Morningside College won a rating of excellent in the women's sweepstakes at the seventeenth annual Pi Kappa Delta speech tournament at Stillwater, Okla., and was ranked among the top fifteen of one hundred thirty three schools competing. Miss Georgia Dandos of Sioux City received a rating in extemporaneous speaking. Miss Eleanor Mohr of Terril, Ia., was chosen speaker of the house.

SCOUTMASTER FOR 38 YEARS

From Mrs. Ada Gehring, '27, County Superintendent of Schools at Howard, S. D., comes the following article. Ada comments as follows: "The February 8 issue of the Daily Argus Leader carried a nice write-up about E. W. Gehring, '12, regarding his thirty eight years of service as scoutmaster. It was reprinted in the Miner County Pioneer and I am sending it to you under separate cover thinking that parts of it would be of interest to the readers of The Morningsider. I am sure there is no couple who have given more unstintingly of their time to the youth of this community than Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gehring, '12. When one considers they have done this work without any remuneration, except the joy of service, it does represent a real sacrificial spirit."

We quote from the article in the Daily Argus Leader: With the Boy Scout organization celebrating its forty-first birthday at this time, no man in this or perhaps neighboring states, has given longer years of service to the organization than E. W. Gehring of this city. He organized his first troop in Howard in 1918, only eight years after the birth of the Boy Scouts of America. However, after graduating from Morningside College in 1912, Mr. Gehring took special training in Boys Work at Lake Geneva, Wisc., and organized a troop in Charles City of which he was scoutmaster in 1912 and 1914.

Returning to Howard, S. D. in 1915, he became superintendent of the Burbank Consolidated School. In 1918, he accepted a position in the First National Bank of Howard, and in that year he organized a scout troop. Mr. Gehring is still an active scout leader. He has served as president of the Thunderbird Boy Scout District, comprising Lake and Miner Counties and at present is vice-president.

That his Boy Scouts were active beyond the point of working for merit badges for advancement, is proved by the fact that in 1944 they raised $3700.00 in a bond drive and have done other things along that line.

Mr. Gehring was locally honored in 1949 in gratitude for his work and time given so generously to scouting in Howard.

Nine of the Sioux Center high school basketball players gather around for a look at the plaque held by Coach Francis Jones shortly after the Indians' mentor was announced as Siouxland's coach of the year by the Journal-Tribune publications.

Francis Jones, '42, basketball coach at Sioux Center high school, is the first recipient of the Journal-Tribune annual Siouxland cage "coach of the year" award. Francis was presented a plaque as a surprise feature of Sioux Center's annual basketball banquet. The award, which will be perpetuated by the Journal-Tribune after each football and basketball season, was instituted as a means of rewarding an outstanding coach in high school circles.

Coach Jones, completing his third year at Sioux Center, was chosen to receive the award after careful consideration of the records of hundreds of Siouxland teams, and evaluation of the job done during the season in manufacturing better-than-expected clubs. In the final analysis he was selected over a field of five other outstanding coaches. Closely pressing Jones for the award was Don Coome, '49, of Merrill, Ia.

The Sioux Center team won twenty eight and lost three games during the regular and tournament campaigns. Beaten only twice by Orange City prior to the state playoffs. the Indians bowed to the 1951 state champion Davenport Blue Devils in the second round of the big classic at Iowa City. This was the third time in four years that the Sioux Center Indians qualified as contenders for the Iowa State Basketball title at Iowa City.

This year's team, with no particular height, experience or speed, developed rapidly under Frannie's skillful direction and compiled one of the finest records ever established by a Sioux Center squad.

Announcement of the death of Harry H. Lockin of Aurelia, Ia., son of the late J. C. Lockin and nephew of the late Charles Lockin, Sr., of Aurelia was made in the Sioux City Journal on April 3. Harry Lockin was one of the early students of Morningside College. To the students of the early days in the history of Morningside College, the Lockin name was very familiar. The three children of J. C. Lockin were Morningside students, and will be remembered as Winifred, Margaret and Harry. All four children of Charles Lockin, Sr., attended Morningside College: Charles, Jr., Cora, Jessie and Clara.

Furthermore, Charles Lockin, Sr. and J. C. Lockin were frequent visitors on the campus for they belonged to the group of founders of the college and were members of the Board of Trustees. They were close personal friends of President Lewis to whom their personal friendship was of inestimable value.

While preaching, February 11, 1951, the Rev. Paul Boodagh, '15, pastor of the First Methodist Church, South Haven, Michigan, was stricken with a heart attack and died in his pulpit.

A native of Iran, Paul fled Mohammedan persecution and came to this country at the age of seventeen. After graduating from Morningside College, he entered the law school of Northwestern University and in 1922 started the practice of law in Illinois, but did not find it to his liking. Thereafter he lectured extensively on Lyceum and Chautauqua courses until he entered the ministry. He had served a number of Michigan churches including Woodside Avenue, Bay City, First Methodist, Manistee, Okemos, among others, before going to South Haven. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife and two brothers in Iran.

KAPPA CHI NEWSLETTER By Helen Price

Since Morningside College is sponsored by The Methodist Church, it is natural to find many students on the campus who are preparing for full-time service in the church. In 1938 these students organized into Kappa Chi Fraternity, later Kappa Chi Fellowship. Some of the charter members include B. Roy Brown, Ralph Kitterman, Robert Caine, William Smith, Harold Bachert, Tony and John Cedwillo, Robert Rae, S. Willard Cunningham, Louise Madison Walters, Stanley Anderson, and George Hawn. CAGERS ELECT WIEDENFELD

Big Dick Wiedenfeld, whose consistently outstanding play at center all during the 1950-51 basketball season was a major factor in Morningside's North Central conference championship, has been named by his teammates as honorary captain of the Maroon cage squad. Dick graduates in June.

Tall No. 23's season scoring total, near 500, is believed to set a Maroon record for a single campaign. Dick, who calls San Diego home, led the locals through a rugged loop schedule and into a half share of the crown—along with the Iowa Teachers.

COACHES FETE LETTERMEN

The Morningside College coaching staff gave their annual steak dinner for all lettermen on April 30 in the Student Union.

A short program accompanied the dinner, following which gold basketball medals as well as letter-jackets were given to the members of the 1951 North Central conference co-champion team.

The coaches donned aprons and served the entire dinner. The kitchen staff included Al Buckingham, head basketball coach; George Allen, head football coach; Clayton Droullard, head freshman mentor and John Wickstrom, assistant frosh football coach. Ira Gwinn, the chairman of the athletic committee, also aided in the serving.

SPRING SPORTS SCHEDULED

Morningside College is taking advantage of the relaxing of the freshman rule by the North Central conference to strengthen its sports program this spring. The North Central abolished the frosh restrictions for a year effective last March 28.

Spring football has been dropped from this year's program and all men who would have participated in the grid drills will be working out on baseball or track squads or other conditioning sports. Participants for golf and tennis under the direction of Athletic Director Al Buckingham are working indoors until the links and courts are in condition.

Track mentor George Allen will have several outstanding performers to boost the quality of the track team.

A promising group of diamond aspirants has appeared for initial baseball drills. Coach Joe Broome reported that his men were limbering up in Allee gym but hoped to transfer their practice sessions to the outdoor diamond as soon as the weather became more favorable. A tentative schedule has been drawn up by the athletic department and an active season is forecast. Players who reported for the early sessions were: lettermen Gus Nemitz, Karl Kletschke, Joe Custer, Bob Brock, Larry Laydu, Bob Barks, Loren Moll, and Paul Allen; and newcomers Jack Hohs, Bob Hussey, Frank Hunter, Gil Garcia, Alton Cowan, Bob Bates, Bill Wickett, Don Minor, Ray Nardoni and Bill Lyle.

True To Morningside Tradition

Read what Bessie Walton says about Living Endowment!

Oh, the thrill of my first college commencement, when I was a student in the eighth grade, and attended graduation exercises at Morningside College! That event gave me an ambition. So as a young girl I knew I wanted to attend college, and be somebody.

Four years later I enrolled as a freshman. Those were thrilling years! Morningside prepared me for the many happy experiences, both the easy ones and the hard ones, which have enriched my life. And besides getting a college education, I found my future husband.

Don and I have never lost contact with the college. We remember the wonderful spirit and the personal interest of the faculty, as well as their expert teaching. We think of the friendships formed there that have lasted through the years. We value the training received, and the college experiences of many kinds.

Somehow, our appreciation of all of this has increased with the years.

We have contributed to Living Endowment every year since it was started, because we feel that it is a splendid way to perpetuate an institution that has been such a vital influence in our lives. We want Morningside to continue to aid other young people as it helped us.

Bessie Reed Walton

Anyone who knew Bessie Reed Walton, '21, in her student days would confidently expect her to take an active interest in every forward movement of her alma mater.

Her enthusiasm and energy were expanded on projects that seemed to her most worth while. In the Living Endowment she sees real value and a far reaching benefit.

She was a promoter of Zeta Sigma and to her belongs the credit for the initiation service of that society.

To her, as a student, Christian service made a strong appeal. Her work in the Y.W.C.A. revealed the efficiency that has so strongly marked her service in connection with Dr. Donald J. Walton's ministry.

It was in 1922 that the Waltons came to the DeWitt Memorial Church in the lower East Side of New York City. In this underprivileged neighborhood they have worked for 29 years with people from all nations and taken a vital part in the civic and educational circles of the community. Satisfying her desire for further study, Bessie took a Master of Arts degree in the school of Education of New York University, '48. For several years she has helped with the marriage counseling in their church as well as with the teaching in the Sunday School and women's organizations.

During her study at N.Y.U. she was elected to membership in the Scholastic Honor Societies, Pi Lambda Theta and Kappa Delta Pi. She also has been active in University Women's Clubs. For 28 years she has been Secretary of the New York Morningside Alumni Organization.

At the present time she is employed as Rehabilitation Counselor at the Neponsit Hospital, a city institution where she works with chronic TB patients.

Their family consists of two children: Mary Clarissa, a Junior at the Northfield School for Girls in Massachusetts, and Robert Cutler, a Freshman at Swarthmore College.

Through such devoted Christians as Bessie and Don Walton Morningside reaches to the far corners of the world in helping man to solve his problems.
