ATTENTION, CHICAGOANS!
Improving position-seeking techniques of college and university graduates is the aim of the DePaul University Man Marketing Clinic which meets every Wednesday evening in the mock courtroom of the University at 64 East Lake street, Chicago. Actual cases such as letters of application for employment or for appointment are discussed in great detail.

Al Block, former instructor at Columbia University, made the statement in the Chicago Journal of Commerce that "this effective effort at encouragement of self-help is ... a most complete example of 'salesman-training.'\)
