Authors' Corner

Morningside alumni have been sending books and articles to the college. When an Alumni Room is available in the library at some future date, these items can be housed together in a central place.

Since the last issue of the Morningsider, Glenn H. Sarling has sent three anthologies and several journals which contain studies in secondary education that he has conducted and reported, and Lauren A. Van Dyke has forwarded a copy of the second edition, "Secondary School Administration."

Horocio Lewis added the second volume in a series of three, listing titles on Latinos at the library of Indiana University. Irvin Engle's "Men Who Dug for Gold and Men Who Preached for God," a collection of meditations, has also been received.

Virgil Williams sent two study books for young people, one entitled "Life Today" and the other "Facing Life."

Muriel Hughes sent a particularly relevant book in this international year of the woman, "Women Healers in Medieval Life and Literature." This book, a 1968 reprint of the original published in 1943, is a careful scholarly analysis of the subject. And E. Wight Bakke and Mary S. Bakke's "Campus Challenge" has also been added to the three books by M. Bakke already on the library shelves.

Miles Beardsley Johnson sent his recently published "Setting of the Stage," an analysis of contemporary American life seen in terms of Biblical prophecy. And Miriam Hawthorne Baker Nye sent her "Recipes and Ideas" "from the Kitchen Window," a collection of items which have appeared in the Sioux City Journal over the last several years.

The contributions are varied, but they will represent the comprehensive interests and excellent achievements of some of our graduates.

GOOD NEWS
At news conference, Board

Thompson, Rep. Bedell and

$1 Million Federal Grant Will Expand Morningside Programs

Morningside College will receive $1 million from the federal government distributed over the next five years to expand its academic program and improve services for students.

Announcement of the large grant, awarded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was made by President Thompson, Board Chairman Bruce Crary and Sixth District Congressman Berkley Bedell at a news conference May 28 in the Student Commons.

President Thompson noted that the college is one of a limited number of educational institutions selected for an award under the Advanced Institutional Development Program (AIDP).

In all, 19 AIDP grants were approved by the U.S. Office of Education (a division of HEW) for the current year. Ten of the colleges and universities were private and nine state related; Morningside's award was the only one in Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota.

The college will use the money over the next five years to strengthen activities in the following six areas:

(1) Curriculum Refinement—To strengthen the Freshman Seminar and Student Initiated Experience programs by providing for more administrative and faculty supervision, and to increase faculty advising time for students.

(2) Special Student Services—Improve the college's two-year-old career counseling and Career Resource Center program; consolidate counseling services in a central locale; retrain personnel; establish special services for minority students and develop a learning disabilities lab.

(3) Indian Studies—Addition of an Indian studies curriculum under the direction of a full time director who will also recruit and counsel American Indian students. Indian and non-Indian students could elect a minor from the courses offered.

(4) Agribusiness—Expand the course offerings within the Business Administration Department to enable students to major in agribusiness—an area encompassing food and grain processing as well as livestock and agriculturally oriented business. Also strengthen the relationship between the college and local agribusiness companies to provide better training opportunities.

(5) Mass Communications—Further development of a program that will inform students generally as to the operation of the communications media, and to prepare interested students for careers in the field and provide training opportunities with the cooperation of the local media.

Colleges today must look to all areas of support-federal government, foundations, corporations, alumni, friends and parents.

(6) Special Education Learning Disabilities—Expand the current “Special Ed” program within the Education Department through the addition of another instructor and by establishment of an instructional materials library, as well as to provide resource personnel.

Each of the projects is designed to be financially self-sufficient and independent of government funding by June 30, 1980, the end of the grant period.

In addition the award provides funds for the creation of a project coordinator’s office to refine the college’s original proposal, to supervise the programs, and carry out planning, management and evaluation.

President Thompson said the University of Iowa has agreed to serve as an evaluator and advisor to the college during the period and has been designated by the Office of Education as the “cooperating institution.”

Morningside’s selection for one of the AIDP grants followed an eight month period in which the college submitted its proposal, then made minor revisions at the recent request of federal officials.

Mrs. Ruth Green, coordinator of special projects for the college, researched the application with the aid of the faculty and administration and did much of the work involved in writing and filing the application. She began work on the application last September.

As for administration of the program, President Thompson announced June 25 that David Van Engelenhoven, a member of the Morningside faculty since 1968, has been appointed to the full-time position of program coordinator.

Van Engelenhoven will work with officials of the Office of Education and the college’s administration and faculty. In the first few months his primary duty will be to coordinate the development and refinement of the proposals for each of the six areas. The final plan will then be submitted for federal approval.

His long-term goals, Van Engelenhoven said, are two-fold. In addition to development and administration of AIDP proposals he will coordinate integration of the six programs into the college’s regular continuing program.

In preparation for implementing AIDP, the president, Van Engelenhoven and Mrs. Green attended a workshop in Washington, D.C. in late June. The three-day meeting was conducted for AIDP institutions by the Office of Education.

President Thompson related that among those who participated in panel discussions during the workshop were the presidents of several institutions which previously had received the grants.

'The grant provides all the more impetus for business and individual donors to invest in Morningside's future'

"Each of them remarked that the awards had enhanced their overall fund-raising and development efforts because of the increased confidence and new direction provided the institutions," he said.

"Indeed, one of the requirements for the award was that Morningside could demonstrate a willingness to undertake realistic long-range plans for its own development in planning, management and evaluation capability.

"The AIDP grant provides all the more impetus for business and individual donors to invest in Morningside's future," the president said.

Crary, at the time of the grant announcement, said the college was extremely fortunate to have been selected from the many applicants.

"The additional funds will strengthen Morningside's overall position and enable the college to reinforce those programs and services which will help students and the community the most," he continued.

"Surely the grant will benefit not only the college but the entire Siouxland community by improving higher education in the area. The dollars coming to the college will be felt by the Sioux City community for many years to come," Crary said.

He stressed that private colleges today must look to all areas of support—federal government, foundations, corporations, alumni, friends and parents; all must be searched out for the advancement of a private college.

"Through the substantial grant, recognition is provided that Morningside College is an institution worthy of investment of tax dollars. The college's development program recognizes and pursues multiple sources of funding in its endeavor to expand and strengthen its role of service," he said.

In order to qualify for the grant, the college was required to submit a comprehensive study of the institution's operation as well as detailed proposals for each of the six areas, according to Mrs. Green.

The Advanced Institutional Development Program, now in its second year of operation, provides grants to institutions that demonstrate a willingness to undertake realistic long-range plans for their own development in planning, management and evaluation capability, Office of Education guidelines state.

Applicant schools, in order to receive grants, must also show a desire to improve their efforts to prepare students for employment or for graduate or professional study; to develop new courses and to revise curriculums aimed at students who are educationally disadvantaged or poorly prepared for higher education, the guidelines continue.

Van Engelenhoven, the new project coordinator, is a native of Morrison, Ill., was educated in the public schools at Orange City, Iowa, and attended Maurice-Orange High School.

He was graduated summa cum laude from Northwestern College in 1965 and received a Master of Arts degree in history from the University of Minnesota.

He joined the faculty at Morningside as an assistant professor of history in the fall of 1968. In addition to his teaching duties, for the past two years he has administered the college's self-study program, Student Initiated Experience (SIE).

Van Engelenhoven is a member of Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary society, and the American Historical Association. He also is a past president of the United Nations Association of Sioux City and is a member of the board of directors of the Volunteer Bureau and the Sioux City Museum and Historical Association.

He and Mrs. Van Engelenhoven, the former Marilyn Doctor of Orange City, are the parents of three children.

ELECT SIX DIRECTORS TO COLLEGE BOARD

Six new members have been elected to the college's board of directors, board chairman Bruce Crary has announced.

Five are Sioux Cityans and the sixth is a former member of the college staff. Two will take office this fall, the others in 1976.

Joining the board for its semi-annual meeting this October will be:

William T. Dible, president and a founder of Terra Chemicals International, Sioux City-based agricultural products firm, and Ray Switzer, president of Switzer-Beeson Co., local marketing agency, and vice president of Global Meats, Inc.

Those who will become board members following the April 1976 meeting are Carolyn Curtis Sloan, local community leader who has served as project assistant at the college; Earle Grueskin, president of Dividend Bonded Gas and former mayor of Sioux City; Fred Davenport, manager of the Sioux City Municipal Airport; and Miles Tommeraaasen of Lincoln, Neb., vice chancellor for business and finance at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and former member of the college's administrative staff.

Dible, who has served as president and a director of Terra Chemicals for 11 years, was previously with International Minerals & Chemical Corp. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin, where he specialized in soil chemistry and plant physiology.

In addition to his associations with Switzer-Beeson and Global Meats, Switzer is vice president of RBH Commodities and W & W Commodities, and is a director of the Iowa Beef Industry Council marketing committee. He is a past president of Central Iowa Stockyards at Webster City and past vice president of the Sioux City Livestock Exchange.

Mrs. Sloan received a Master of Arts degree from the University of Minnesota and for the past two years has served as project assistant with the Morningside History Department on programs sponsored jointly by the college and the Iowa Humanities Board. She has been active in many community organizations.

Grueskin, who has been associated with Dividend Bonded Gas since 1955, served on the City Council from 1964 to 1971 and was mayor in 1968-69. He has been a member of the City Planning and Zoning Commission and currently is chairman of the college's Sustaining Campaign.

Davenport, a 1941 graduate of Morningside, was vice president of Conservative Bond and Mortgage Company in Sioux City for 10 years and owned the Davenport Company, home building and real estate firm, from 1955 to 1963. He served on the City Council of Sioux City from 1958-61.

Tommeraaasen was graduated from Morningside in 1943 and was a member of the college staff from 1950 to 1964, first as an instructor and then chairman of the Business Administration Department, dean of men, and executive vice president. He joined the staff at Lincoln in 1964 and was named vice chancellor in 1969.

AWARD 218 DEGREES AT MAY GRADUATION

Morningside awarded bachelor degrees to 218 students in spring commencement exercises at Allee Gymnasium May 11.

The total includes 80 Bachelor of Arts, 116 Bachelor of Science, 19 Bachelor of Music Education, and three Bachelor of Music degrees.

In addition, President Thompson conferred honorary degrees on Dr. Glenn Leggett, former president of Grinnell College; Dr. William Anderson, superintendent of Sioux City Community Schools; and Miss Beatrice Tift, a member of the English Department faculty for 18 years before her retirement in 1974.

The college also presented its Order of Morningside award for distinguished service to Dr. Harvey Potthoff, a 1932 graduate, former member of the board of directors, and architect and first chairman of the long-range planning program for Morningside.

Miss Tift was awarded a Doctor of Letters degree, and Leggett and Anderson received the degree Doctor of Laws.

In the commencement address, Leggett, now vice president for corporate communications with Deere & Company, profited the generation to which he and the graduate's parents belong.

He told the seniors that while it is necessary for them to question the authority of the older generation, they also should apply understanding.

"The problem with authority is not that it's blind or powerstruck, but that it has to reach decisions — not merely conclusions — and these decisions have to be made in an immediate physical and social environment which seldom permits any of the nice qualifications and philosophical modifications of conclusion," he said.

Distinguished visitors present at the commencement program included Bishop Abel Muzorewa, head of the United Methodist Church in Rhodesia, who watched as his brother Ernest received a bachelor's degree. Bishop Muzorewa is the eldest of nine children.

COLLEGE HONORS FOUR WITH ALUMNI AWARDS

An author, a diplomat and two corporation executives were honored for achievement and service as Morningside observed Alumni Days on campus May 9-11. Selected for distinguished alumni awards were:

Nancy Cray Veglahn of Brookings, S.D., a 1959 graduate and author of nine books for young people.

J. Wesley Jones, former U.S. ambassador to Libya and Peru and a veteran of 40 years in foreign service. Ambassador Jones attended Morningside in 1926-28.

Fred B. Smith, former vice president of Western Electric Company, manufacturer of telephone equipment for the Bell System. Smith was graduated in 1923.

Arthur R. Van Wyngarden, president of V-W Corporation and Morningside track star who graduated in 1932. The college's Van Wyngarden Relays were named for him.

The awards were announced at the annual Alumni-Senior Banquet in the Student Commons May 10 as some 500 guests attended. Due to emergencies, Jones, Smith and Van Wyngarden were unable to receive their awards in person, but Mrs. Veglahn was the evening's main speaker and was presented a plaque by Alumni President Harold Poppen.

Most of Mrs. Veglahn's published works are historically oriented. "The Spider of Brooklyn Heights" received the New York Herald Tribune Book Week honor book award in 1967 and two other books, "The Vandals of Treason House" and "Swimmers, Take Your Marks!" were selected for the Weekly Reader Children's Book Club.

Jones was U.S. ambassador to Peru from 1962 until his retirement in 1971. Previously he served in Rome, Nanking, China (during the final stages of the Communist Revolution), and in Madrid. He also has been deputy assistant secretary of state for European Affairs in Washington and ambassador to Libya. He now lives at Flat Rock, N.C.

Smith, currently a resident of Fairmont, Minn., retired in 1963 as vice president in charge of Western Electric's manufacturing plants in the eastern part of the country. His 35-year career with the company included several years at the Sandia Corporation in Albuquerque, N.M., a non-profit subsidiary manufacturing nuclear bombs for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Van Wyngarden, now president and owner of the V-W Corporation of Indianapolis, Ind., formerly was sales manager for Wear Ever Aluminum Company, and president and owner of Color Craft Corporation. The time of 24 seconds he set in the 220-yard low hurdles in 1932 still stands as a North Central Conference record.

This year's Alumni Days honored members of the class of 1925 on their 50th reunion, and the group was entertained at dinner by President and Mrs. Thompson at the president's residence the evening of May 9.

Attendance was also large for the Saturday noon luncheon for alumni, presided over by the president-elect of the Alumni Association, Jo Ann Hammerstrom Fowler. In addition to the 50 year class, the program also honored those who had graduated more than 50 years ago, and the classes of 1930, '35, '40, '45, '50, '55 and '60.

Pianist Larry Graham Wins Acclaim in International Competition...

Except for Morningside's Larry Graham, the Soviet Union might have captured all the top places in the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition in Brussels this spring.

The 31-year-old Graham, assistant professor of music at the college, placed fourth among 12 finalists in the prestigious, month long contest sponsored by the Belgian government.

Larry was the only non-Russian among the top five winners in the regular competition. And in the hearts of the Belgian people, he still ranks No. 1.

Graham captured the "Prize of the Public" award, given for the first time this year to the contestant best liked by Belgians who followed the event over television and radio.

Some 3,700 viewers and listeners telephoned Belgian Radio-TV at a rate of nearly 40 calls a minute to name Graham their favorite. Apart from his artistry, Graham's popularity was assisted by the warm image he projected on stage and at the keyboard while competing as the lone American surrounded by capable Russians.

At the prize ceremony in the Fine Arts Palace May 31, Larry received $100,000 Belgian francs for the fourth-place finish and 50,000 francs for capturing the public competition—about $5,200 at the existing rate of exchange.

But of greater importance, he established himself in a select group as a leading pianist with an international reputation. Before returning home he was signed to a three-year recording contract by Decca Records, and the initial record has already been cut. In addition, he will travel to Belgium for two-week concert tours which have been scheduled for September and November.

* * * *

The finals coincided with the NATO summit meeting in Brussels, and Mrs. Ford's visit to the music competition was telecast with Graham identified as the American performer.

He and the Russian who finished fifth, Sergei Yuskevitch, were invited to play the following week for the president's wife, Queen Fabiola and Princess Paola of Belgium.

Of 14 Americans who entered the Queen Elisabeth competition, Graham was the only one to survive the semifinals. The other finalists included five Russians, two Belgians, a Frenchman, Austrian, Japanese and an Argentine. First place was won by 20-year-old Mikhail Faerman of the Soviet Union.

The competition was inaugurated in 1937 to honor the late Queen Elisabeth, grandmother of reigning King Baudouin, who played the violin and was a generous patron of the arts. It alternates each year between violin and piano, and the Fine Arts Palace is sold out months in advance and telecasts of the competition draw huge audiences.

* * * *

A large crowd of college and townspeople was at the Sioux City Airport June 28 to give Larry and Beverly Graham a rousing welcome home. The college was represented officially by President Thompson and Lawrence DeWitt, chairman of the Music Department, who presented Beverly with a bouquet.

At a news conference which followed, Graham explained that the Russians excelled because they were carefully selected by the Soviet government and had devoted a great deal of time to preparation. Contestants from the United States and other western countries entered the competition as individuals and were not supported directly by their governments, he noted.

As for the years of work which preceded his feat, he admitted he had begun to feel embittered about his career before entering the Brussels contest. However, the events in May had made the past six years of intensive study worthwhile, he said.

Other awards Graham has received during his career include the 1958 Tulsa Philharmonic Youth Auditions, 1953 Bloch Competition (Oklahoma City), 1964 G. B. Dealey National Competition (Dallas), second prize in the Kosciuszko Foundation National Competition, semi-finalist in the Van Cliburn International Competition, 1967 National Federated Music Clubs Competition, semi-finalist in the 1968 Montreal International Piano Competition, and 1969 winner of the Concert Artists Guild (New York City).

He presented a recital in New York City's Carnegie Hall in 1970 and has been featured as soloist with the symphony orchestras of Dallas, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Miami Beach and Sioux City.

Graham joined the Morningside faculty in 1969.

NBA's Atlanta Hawks

Pick Dave Schlessler

Morningside's Dave Schlessler, twice Most Valuable Player in the North Central Conference, was picked by the Atlanta Hawks in the National Basketball Association player draft May 29.

Schlessler, the 6-11 star who helped put Morningside College basketball "back on the map," was the only player from the NCC selected in the draft. His selection by Atlanta came on the ninth round.

"I was kind of thinking about it (the draft) all day, Dave admitted when informed of his selection that evening. "It was a good feeling," he added. He was given the news by Coach Dan Callahan.

Schlessler, who graduated in May, said he had had no contact with Atlanta or any other professional team prior to the draft, although the Hawks, New Orleans and several other pro teams had contacted Callahan regarding Dave's plans. Schlessler said he had harbored no preference as to where he might play pro ball.

His immediate thoughts were on a European basketball tour with other American collegians slated for June. The month-long excursion included games with several different opponents and would not affect his amateur status. Schlessler said he was going primarily for the experience.

Regarding Dave's selection, Callahan said, "I think it shows what hard work and dedication can do. I'm extremely happy that Dave has been selected in the pro draft. It's a great honor for Dave and I consider it a tremendous boost to our basketball program at Morningside."

The only other Morningsider ever drafted by the NBA was premier guard John Vermilyea, who was picked eight years ago by the then Cincinnati Royals.

Schlessler was one of five "big" men picked by Atlanta in the early rounds of the draft. In the first round the Hawks tapped All American Marvin "The Eraser" Webster of Morgan State.

POMERENKE TABBED AS CALLAHAN AIDE

Dan Pomeranke will become assistant basketball coach at Morningside for the 1975-76 season, Athletic Director Lowell "Bud" Brockman has announced.

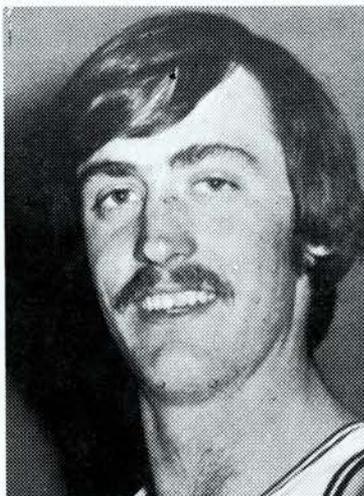

Pomeranke replaces Lowell Crippen, who has been assisting Coach Dan Callahan the past two seasons. He will be responsible for coaching the junior varsity and assisting the varsity in addition to scouting and recruiting duties.

Dan was a key player as the Chiefs established a 17-12 record last season, finishing second in the North Central Conference and winning a berth in the NAIA finals as District 15 champions.

He led the Chiefs in assists during the season and ranked third in the conference in that category.

"Dan got the ball in play and set up the offense while playing great defense," Callahan noted. "He was an extremely valuable athlete for us the last two seasons and I look forward to working with him in his new capacity."

Pomeranke, who will complete his student teaching this fall, is taking graduate courses on campus this summer.

SPORTS

CHIEFS' NINE TAKES 2ND IN CONFERENCE

The weather failed to cooperate but the Chiefs baseball team finished the 1975 season in second place in the strong North Central Conference. Because of a rainy spring, the team was able to play only 26 of the 37 game schedule, and they finished the season with a 10-16 record.

The season opened in the tough "Citrus Tournament" at Pan American University, rated seventh in the nation, in Edinburgh, Tex. Two of the top victories for the Chiefs were over Indiana University and Eastern Michigan, which wound up in the national tournament this summer at Omaha.

After the southern excursion, bad weather hampered the team for the balance of the season, allowing them to play only 11 of 20 scheduled conference games.

Coach Don Protexter's men were conference runnerups to South Dakota State, a team the Chiefs were unable to meet because of the rain. "It's hard to win the league if you don't get to play the top team," mused Pro.

Strong point for the season was pitching as the mound corps finished second in the conference in the earned run department. On the other hand, hitting was below average. Just a couple of hits at the right moment might have boosted the Chiefs into first place.

Honors for the season went to senior catcher Jim Westergaard, an all-conference selection, while junior Ron Washburn, an outfielder, was recognized with a berth on the All NAIA-Iowa District team.

Selected by their teammates to receive honors were Washburn, Most Valuable Player; junior outfielder Curt White, Most Improved; and freshman outfielder Frank Tirado, Mr. Hustle.

Four graduating seniors — Jim Miller, Rodd Nordstrom, Steve Zediker and Westergaard — will leave big holes in the 1976 lineup. Nordstrom and Zediker were all conference a year ago. Otherwise, Protexter notes, the squad looks very strong with a returning pitching staff, all the outfield and some excellent infielders.

A number of outstanding freshman prospects are committed to attend Morningside this fall. "These fine young ball players, sprinkled among the returning veterans, should make the Chiefs a contender again next year," Protexter predicts.

DEPTH, EXPERIENCE FAVOR GRID CHIEFS

Increased depth and added experience will be big plusses for the Chiefs football team as the squad embarks soon on the '75 campaign.

As the Morningsider went to press, Coach John Dornon and his staff were making final preparations for a group of some 65 grid hopefuls who are expected for opening of fall practice around the middle of August.

It will be an experienced squad to work with. The members of last year's team progressed individually all season, and any remaining rough spots were polished during an excellent spring practice session.

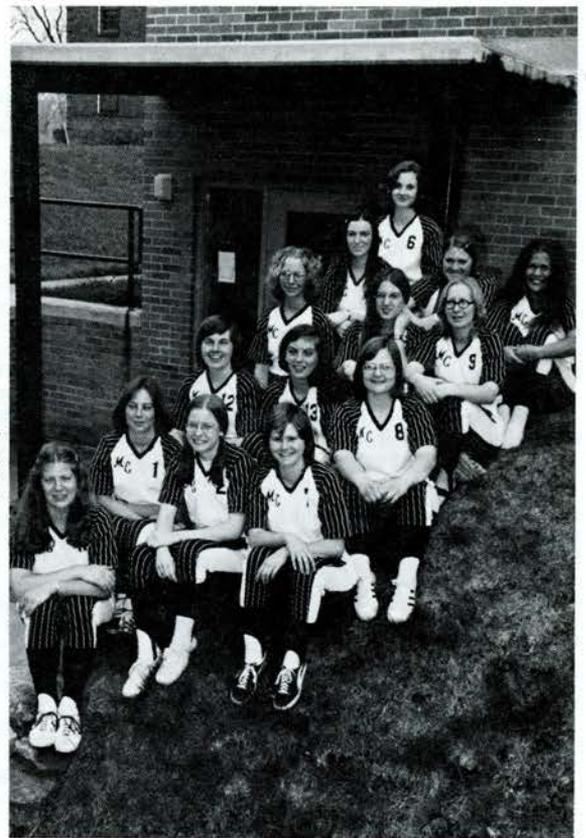

About 40 participated in the spring drills and the coaching staff expects close to 95 per cent of them back this fall. Since the work on basics is already out of the way for this group, Dornon can look forward to perfecting the offense and defense.

The staff expects to employ the same system as last year, making full use of the experience acquired by returning veterans.

Another factor in the Chiefs' favor is an excellent recruiting year recorded by the coaching staff. As reported in the Morningsider for March, eight top high school stars from Iowa and Nebraska will participate as incoming freshmen this fall.

WOMEN STARS

The 1975 Women's Softball team, which won three, lost two and placed four members on All Conference team.

Some of the newcomers were recruited for added depth in key spots and are likely to see a great deal of action as the season progresses.

The 1975 season will open early this year with an Aug. 30 contest against an alumni aggregation. The game, scheduled for Roberts Stadium, is successor to the 1974 affair which brought down the curtain on the spring practice season. Another lively, crowd-pleasing afternoon is expected.

Following the alumni game the Chiefs will open a nine game schedule which calls for four at home and five away. Starting times for each of the contests will be 1:30 p.m., except for the UNO game—the annual Shrine affair—which will get underway at 2:00 p.m.

NEW SPRINTERS KEY TRACK HOPES FOR '76

Although plagued by injuries, the Morningside track team injected extra effort and ended the 1975 season on a fairly successful note.

Coach Mick Everett, noting that work needs to be done on sprint relay teams for next season, has signed two ace sprinters from Sioux City high schools, North's George Margeas and East's Perry Green.

Highlighting the 1975 season was Bob Larson's performance in capturing the conference 880-yard run in 1:53.4, a Morningside record. Larson will be back next spring for a try at an even better mark, Everett noted.

Also returning will be Duane Rees (440 hurdles), who was out most of the past campaign with an injured leg, Terry Bahney (880), Ron Heaton (hurdles), Denny Bogenrief (sprints).
