the Morningsider

Authors' Corner

Several Morningsiders have sent copies of their published work to the college, and the materials are being cataloged and added to the collection. Someday when it is feasible a section of the library will be devoted to these items and perhaps a room can be designated "The Alumni Room" to house the production of Morningside's alumni.

Among the works received is one by Horacio D. Lewis, '67, "A Guide to Publications on Latinos at Indiana University Library, Volume 1: The Chicanos" (Indiana University, 1974). Mr. Lewis lists specific journals in the Indiana University Library which contain articles by or about Chicanos, then lists an impressive bibliography which covers more than 100 pages. It is a useful tool in any library because the journals usually are available anywhere and the central index becomes a fine research tool.

Tom McHale, x'25, sent a copy of "Dooley's Delusion," (Drake House/Hallux, 1971), a fascinating fictionalized treatment of Sioux City, focusing on the years 1880 to 1915. The economic panic of 1893 is the central catastrophic event around which most of the book's action flows. Those interested in the growth of Sioux City will find it irresistible. The book is available from Drake House, 116 W. Orr St., Anderson, S.C. 29621.

Stan Nelson, '70, sent a book called "Minnen" (Swedish for memories), written by his grandmother, Hilda Soderman. It is a collection based on real life experiences on the North Dakota plains which she told to her grandchildren when they were young. Stan's book is hand set and printed in his own shop, the Atelier Press, and hand bound. He produced 25 copies of the edition and has donated one to the Morningside College Library.

The three works have been received since the last issue of The Morningsider. Of course many alumni have contributed their published materials to the library in the past, and the donors are too numerous to mention.

However, if you have a book or record (or multiple titles of such materials) already in the college library, please inform Charles Lemaster, acting director of Library Services. You will be helping the college build a list of titles for future placement in an alumni center.

Morningside Launches Endowment Program

The Second Founding

The human resource . . . cornerstone of Morningside College

The year 1975 will be an exciting time in the history of Morningside College. The coming months will witness the launching of the college's most dramatic program for development.

For four generations since the original founding, the college has prospered and grown. The physical foundation is strong. The task in 1975 is to make the second—the fiscal—foundation as strong as the first.

The program will develop the four cornerstones of the college—the student, the faculty, the curriculum, the campus. The cost of the development program will be four million dollars to strengthen the college's endowment and to provide for a modest building addition and renovation program.

The new, major development program was in the final stages of preparation as The Morningsider went to press. Details of the program will soon be made public. All who are close to the college will be invited to join in The Second Founding of Morningside College.

On September 19, 1897, Dr. Lewis met the committee.

"What is there to build on?" he queried.

"Nothing. Absolutely nothing but opportunity," Dr. Smylie honestly answered. "We believe that Northwest Iowa holds a great future."

BRENEISEN - LAWRENCE SHOW BEGINS TOUR OF IOWA CITIES

Iowa residents are becoming better acquainted with the state's wildflowers through the artistic efforts of two Morningside College faculty members, Frank Breneisen, art, and John Lawrence, philosophy.

With the aid of a grant from the Iowa Arts Council, they have created a colorful exhibition of 27 varieties of flowers which grace the Iowa landscape. Lawrence's medium is photography, and Breneisen chose serigraphs (silkscreen prints) to portray his selections.

The exhibition will be shown in 12 major Iowa cities during 1975.

Reproduced here are several pieces from the show. Unfortunately, reproduction in black and white fails to do justice to the originals in full color, but it might provide readers of The Morningsider with a hint of the grace and beauty expressed in the exhibition.

Potpourri A Summary of Campus Events

NEW TUITION RATES ANNOUNCED FOR FALL

Tuition and fees for the 1975-76 academic year at Morningside will total $2,233, Bruce Crary, chairman of the college's board of directors, announced March 7.

The new figure represents an increase of $150 over the rate presently in effect. It was approved at a joint meeting recently of the board's finance and executive meetings.

The raise in tuition and fees will be used exclusively to finance increases in salaries and increments granted to all college employees for the coming fiscal year, Crary said.

The total of $2,233 is slightly under an average of $2,293 projected for fall for Iowa's 24 four-year private colleges. A survey of those colleges shows that each has or will announce increases averaging $154 for the coming academic year.

TERRY SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED TO FOUR

Four Morningside students have been awarded Terry Educational Foundation Scholarships for the current academic year, President Thompson has announced.

The awards, varying from $500 to $1,000, are funded by income from a trust initiated by the late Robert L. Terry, prominent Sioux City businessman and civic leader.

The new winners, all freshmen, are Mark Haberman, St. Paul, Minn.; Bruce Bahlmann, Nashua, Iowa; Daniel Brooks, Sioux City; and James Sherwood, Dunlap, Iowa. Haberman is majoring in Music, Bahlmann in English, Brooks in Business Administration, and Sherwood in Biology.

Prior to his death in 1969, Mr. Terry took steps which led to the Terry Educational Foundation to provide scholarships for students at Morningside. To qualify students must rank in the upper 25 per cent of their graduating class and have scholarship need. Good moral character, personality and church membership are other considerations.

In 1927 Mr. Terry founded United Wholesalers, a Sioux City auto parts firm. He retired as its president in 1959 but continued as chairman of the board until 1969. He was active in community and church organizations.

His widow, Clara, has provided an annual scholarship at Morningside for several years.

SPECIAL DAYS DRAW PARENTS TO CAMPUS

One of the largest crowds ever to attend Parents' Weekend activities visited the campus Feb. 28, March 1 and 2.

The activities formally opened Saturday morning in the Randolph Room with President and Mrs. Thompson hosting a coffee hour. A large group of parents and students were on hand to visit with members of the faculty and administration.

A short business meeting of the Parents Association followed a brunch in the main dining room of the Commons.

Some 300 visitors attended the buffet dinner at 5:30 p.m., while the Phi Mu Sinfonia Jazz Band provided music. For evening entertainment Friday and Saturday, parents could choose between the Drama Department's production of "The Cherry Orchard" and Chiefs' basketball games at Allee Gym with University of Northern Iowa and Mankato State.

MORNINGSIDER WINS LANGUAGE AWARD

Judy Bahlmann, a Morningside College student from Nashua, Iowa, has been named a winner of the Marea Goddard Scholarship presented by Alpha Mu Gamma, national collegiate foreign language honor society.

Miss Bahlmann was one of two persons selected for the coming year from a field of students nominated by the society's 204 chapters in the United States. She was sponsored by the Language Department at Morningside.

Miss Bahlmann is a junior majoring in French and German and is a straight "A" student at the college.

She is the second Morningside student within two years to be honored with the society's scholarship. Anita Belfrage, a 1974 graduate from Sergeant Bluff, Iowa, received the award for her senior year.

WHO'S WHO AMONG VISITORS TO CAMPUS

Helena Lopata, director of Loyola University of Chicago Center for Comparative Study of Social Roles, foresees family arrangements in which the husband and wife, equally trained, will take turns working at a single job; occasions where a child educated by parents will send his mother or father through college in turn. "There will be many more flexible stages of life styles and more combinations," she predicted. "We're building a stronger foundation for each human being to experience increasing trust and love for others."

Stewart Udall, secretary of the interior from 1961-69 and member of the Kennedy and Johnson cabinets: "We are running out of cheap food. Never again will the consumers of this country see the kind of food prices we had three or four years ago, and we probably are heading for a global tragedy because of the lack of food. Looking to the future of America, the one big winner we will have is agriculture and the big loser we will see is energy."

Dr. F. Thomas Trotter, general secretary of the board of higher education and ministry of the United Methodist Church: Society presently is suffering from "a vast malaise of confidence—a lack of self confidence—and the private, church related institutions must provide leadership and direction." Colleges and universities without a strong sense of mission are the least likely to survive, he said.

Nicholas T. Goncharoff, director of international education and cultural affairs for the National Board of YMCAs. A native of Russia who served in the Soviet armed forces in World War II, Goncharoff said that America must avoid involving itself on an emotional level in world affairs and strive for an impartial approach to the Middle Eastern and other problems. "If we adopt such a policy, then maybe the Russians will follow suit," he suggested.

George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development (1969-72) and member of the Nixon cabinet, said the nation is in its present economic predicament because of weak enforcement of the antitrust laws coupled with excesses arising from collective bargaining. He endorsed a recent proposal by economist Paul McCracken which would prohibit both wage and price increases that result from "abuse of excess power," and called for a restoration of competition in the nation's largest industries.

CHOIR MEMBERS SING FOR ENGLAND TRIP

In order to finance their tour of England in May, members of the Concert Choir have formed quartets and are performing in cities and towns throughout Iowa.

The overseas concert tour was conceived by the choir's director, Dr. James Wood, during a sabbatical study in England during the spring of 1974.

Since many of the 38 students who registered for the trip are unable to bear the financial burden on their own, Wood wrote to churches in Iowa offering the services of quartets for programs.

On weekends for the past few months the groups have been fanning out from the college toward such destinations as Burlington and Fort Madison (some 350 miles away in the opposite corner of the state) and the small community of Russell in south-central Iowa.

Some of the quartets perform at two churches each Sunday, singing simple but appealing religious music.

All have returned with generous offerings from congregations to add to the travel fund.

Wood reported recently that eight quartets were booked through April 27 and more requests are coming. Additional units were to be formed to meet the demand.

Iowa communities which have been or will be visited in the near future include Schaller, Correctionville, Cushing, Lake View, Wall Lake, Moville, New Bethel, Casey, Creston, Dunlap, Varina, Newell, Hartley, Spencer, Cedar Rapids, Wyoming, Oelwein, Brooklyn and Mitchellville.

Dr. Wood has planned a varied trip in England that calls for extended visits in the scenic rural sections as well as the large metropolitan areas.

The itinerary calls for the group to travel to Toronto by bus May 11 and to leave by plane for England the following day. The first seven days they will be quartered with farm families in the county of Devonshire, and the following week at Llundors, a country mansion of more than 100 rooms operated by the Methodist Church near Bristol on the Welsh border.

Concerts at American air bases at Oxford and Alconbury are included among the 11 programs presently scheduled. The highlight of the tour will come when the choir provides the music for the Wesley Day Celebration of the Methodist Church at Wesley Chapel in Bristol.

"Big Day at NAIA"

Fans Cheer Callahan & Company
at National Finals in Kansas City...

When Coach Dan Callahan and his Morningside Chiefs showed up at Kansas City in March for the opening of the NAIA national tournament, they must have prompted more than a few "double takes." Their avid followers knew the Chiefs belonged there, but others might have been excused for expecting someone else.

In the first place Callahan & Company squeezed into a berth in the District 15 playoffs by virtue of a victory over Mankato State in the final game of the season. Had the Chiefs lost (they trailed 40-31 at half), Buena Vista might have gotten the nod for the final district invitation.

The Chiefs entered the district seeded fourth in a field of four, then played their familiar spine-tingling game of come-from-behind-in-the-final-seconds to down St. Ambrose 71-70.

Then to prove to any doubting Thomases that they were the best team in the field, the Chiefs followed the same script the following night against Iowa Wesleyan, which had eliminated Morningside's crosstown rival, Briar Cliff.

With less than a minute to play, Morningside trailed Wesleyan 69-64 and the Tigers were at the free-throw line. But the Chiefs came within a point on two quick baskets and Dan Pomerence scored the winning goal just before the horn ended the game.

Thus the Chiefs went to Kansas City as the Cinderella team. Each of the 31 other aggregations had a better record, but perhaps none could equal Morningside in poise and the ability to use the underdog role to advantage.

If the Chiefs were something special in the tournament, so were the nearly 400 fans who came to cheer them in Crosby-Kemper Arena for the opening round game with Wisconsin-Parkland. Morningside students had chartered four buses and arrived the day before, while staff and townspeople traveled by car and plane. They were perhaps the largest and most enthusiastic group at the tourney.

The Chiefs couldn't quite get it all together. They led by eight at one point, fell behind, then once again fought back in the closing minutes. Parkside pulled away in the final seconds and won 57-53.

No one was bitter. It had been a record-breaking story book season for the Chiefs and their fans, and Morningsiders in the stands felt the team had rewarded them for coming, just as richly as they had been rewarded at each of the games during the regular season.

It wasn't the first time that Morningside had reached the nationals (they gained the quarterfinals in 1952 and lost a first round bid in 1959). And with kind of spirit kindled by the 1974-75 squad, it certainly won't be the last.

SPORTS

CHIEFS RACE TO TIE FOR SECOND IN NCC

Coach Dan Callahan's 1975 basketball team, cast at the outset of the season as the underdogs of the North Central Conference, put together one of the finest acts on the circuit and stormed to a second-place tie in the conference standings.

It was Morningside's best loop showing since the Chiefs captured the crown in 1951, and Callahan & Company used it for a springboard to snatch the NAIA District championship and a trip to the national tourney in Kansas City (see 'Big Day at NAIA,' pages 8 and 9).

While fighting their way toward the top the Chiefs left the hearts of fans pounding with a number of ball games decided in the final seconds. Several records were also shattered en route to the 9-5 conference record.

Big Dave Schlessler, 6-11 pivotman, grabbed 237 rebounds in the conference, breaking the old league mark set by USD's Chuck Authier in 1972. And his field goal accuracy of .6020 was also a new league high.

His stellar performances earned Schlessler the NCC's coveted Most Valuable Player Award for the second consecutive year and honorable mention in the Little All America selections.

As a team, the Chiefs led the league in offense during the season with 78.8 points per game, with Schlessler's 20.9 conference average (second best in NCC) a significant factor.

The Chiefs, 17-12 overall counting tournament play, tied for second with Augustana and North Dakota State, three games behind conference champion North Dakota U.

Callahan will have a wealth of talent returning for the 1975-76 season, but will have his work cut out for him in finding replacements for Schlessler and sparkplug guard Dan Pomerence (third in number of assists in the loop).

VETERANS BRIGHTEN '75 DIAMOND HOPES

"With an experienced infield returning and some promising young pitchers coming up, we've got to be optimistic," concludes Baseball Coach Don Protexter in previewing the 1975 season.

Protexter has eight lettermen—including three infielders—back from last year's 11-23 club. Heading the list of veterans are two All North Central selections, pitcher Steve Zediker and first baseman Rodd Nordstrom.

In addition to Nordstrom, second baseman Jim Miller and third baseman Tom Eckert will be back at their old positions. Nordstrom hit .309 a year ago, Miller .240 and Eckert .236. To fill the shortstop spot Protexter has Jim Lynch, Ellsworth Junior College transfer.

Zediker, a .344 hitter with seven homers in '74, will move behind the plate this season, while letterman Jim Westergaard bolsters the outfield.

Protexter is able to move Zediker from the mound to catcher because the Chiefs' pitching staff was strengthened through recruiting. Junior college transfers Bill Birk and Bob Faber and freshman Lee Quade will team with veteran Tom McWilliams for a strong group of hurlers.

Sophomore Bruce Lubach, sidelined by a knee injury in '74, also is working his pitching arm into shape.

If the Chiefs have a problem it could be in the outfield where Skip Holton, a .270 hitter is the only regular returning. But in addition to Westergaard, help should come from Bob Kirschbaum, a letterwinner in the infield last season, junior Ron Washburn and Curt White.

The Chiefs open an ambitious 36-game schedule March 24 against Pan American University in the Citrus Tournament at Edinburg, Tex. The home season and North Central competition both open April 4 with a double header against North Dakota State University.

WOMEN CAGERS MISS STATE TOURNEY TRIP

Morningside's women cagers, rapidly gaining respect as an Io-Kota Conference power, barely missed a trip to the Iowa state women's tournament this year.

Coach Linda Maroney's team wound up the regular season with an eight-game winning streak for a second place tie with Dordt. The Sioux Center college nailed down the tourney berth with a 73-52 victory.

Morningside's record for the regular season was 8-2.

MORNINGSIDE HOSTS NAIA MAT TOURNEY

More than 400 wrestlers representing 100 colleges converged on Allee Gymnasium March 5-8 as Morningside hosted the NAIA Wrestling Championships for the second time in three years.

Adams State, the perennial power from Alamosa, Colo., won its fifth NAIA mat crown, a record unequaled in the tourney's 18 year span. Adams State was the big winner when the Chiefs first hosted the classic in 1973.

Morningside's John Snakenburg, freshman at 158 pounds, made an impressive showing as he led his teammates by reaching the consolation quarterfinals. Snakenburg just missed qualifying for the fifth-sixth place action when he was ousted on a 13-3 decision by Steve Stoute of Rutgers-Newark.

Morningside Coach Arnie Brandt, who directed the championships again this year, was honored by his fellow coaches with his election as president of the NAIA Wrestling Coaches Association.

The meet, always a crowd pleaser, drew large numbers of spectators, wrestlers, coaches and team followers to Sioux City and the college campus.

In regular season competition, the Chiefs finished with a 9-11 mark in dual competition. Morningside thumped Concordia 42-5 and Dana 46-9 in the finale.

DORNON, STAFF SIGN TOP GRID PROSPECTS

Morningside's grid outlook brightened in recent weeks with the recruiting of at least eight top high school stars by Coach John Dornon and staff.

Reflecting the areas of greatest concern for fall, the major emphasis was on the quarterback and linebacker positions.

Those who have signed letters of intent to enroll at Morningside include:

Greg Mieras, who quarterbacked East High of Sioux City to an 8-1 record and rating among top 10 teams in state last fall. A sharp passer and excellent runner, the 6-0, 180 pound Mieras reportedly was contacted by 22 colleges. He was second team all-state and East's Most Valuable Player.

CHIEFS' MVP

Coach Dan Callahan presents Dave Schlessler with award as the North Central Conference's Most Valuable Player for 1974-75 during half-time ceremony. Schlessler won the honor for the second consecutive year.

Ron Kleywegt, 6-4, 240 pound fullback from Runnells, Iowa who probably will be tried at offensive tackle and defensive end. Kleywegt, first team All Central Iowa and All State honorable mention in 1974, graduated Jan. 6 and now is attending classes at Morningside.

Brent Bielenberg, 6-1, 185 pound quarterback from Charlotte, Iowa. Awarded All Eastern Iowa honors while playing at Northeast Goose Lake High School.

Mark Frerichs, 6-3, 175 pound quarterback from Superior, Neb., a two-time All Conference performer.

Jeff Reinders, 6-2, 210 pound linebacker from George, Iowa. Jeff was first team All Conference in '74.

Ronnie Tripe, 6-2, 220 pound tackle from Orleans, Neb., who reportedly has the speed and ability to play linebacker in college ball. Tripe was first team All-State in Nebraska last fall.

Steve Siebecker, another first team All-State selection from Superior, Neb. Steve is also a linebacker prospect.

Arthur Turner, 6-6, 270 pound transfer from Clarinda (Iowa) Junior College. Turner, leading rebounder for the Clarinda basketball team, played his football at Omaha's North High School at defensive tackle.

Spring practice will open April 7, Dornon reports, and climax with the annual game with the alumni stars on May 3. A total of 39 players will report for spring drills while six other grid prospects participate in baseball and track.

Of last year's squad, Dornon will have 28 lettermen returning this fall, including 20 starters.

EVERETT'S FIRST JOB: REBUILD RELAY UNITS

In his first year as Morningside's head track coach, Mick Everett is blessed with six returning lettermen from last year's capable squad.

All isn't roses however, when you consider what Mick doesn't have back from 1974. Gone are Freeman Berry, Tom Tucker and Pat Riddle.

That's a powerful lot to lose from any team, and now Everett faces the task of rebuilding his relay units.

Heading the list of veterans are Dave Honeck, Bob Larson, Delbert Christensen, Ron Heaton, Terry Bahnney and Henry Duffey.

Everett also expects help from newcomers Duane Rees (Sioux City North), Dennis Bogenrief (Sioux City East), Greg Haase (Sioux City Heelan), Jim Mol (Sioux Center, Iowa), Dwight Hayes (Los Angeles, Calif.) and Guy McCausland (Camanche, Iowa).

The Chiefs opened the indoor season at the University of Nebraska-Omaha Invitational Feb. 21. Morningside scored on Heaton's second in the 60-yard high hurdles and a third place finish by the two-mile relay team of Haase, Bahney, Christensen and Larson.

At Mankato State the Chiefs picked up six points as the two-mile team finished fourth, and Duffy, Greg Askland, Phil Eaton and Honek captured fifth in the four-lap relay.

In the North Central Indoor Meet at Fargo March 22, Duffy finished fifth in the 60-yard dash as South Dakota State ran up 84 points in successfully defending its conference indoor title.

The outdoor schedule: April 5—USD Invitational at Vermillion; April 9—Wayne State at Wayne; April 16—Bluejay Relays at Worthington; April 19—Van Wyngarden Relays at home; April 22—Knight Relays at Orange City; April 25-26—Drake Relays at Des Moines; May 3—Howard Wood Relays at Sioux Falls; May 11-12—North Central Conference Meet at Brookings.
