Henri Pensis, Conductor and Composer

The November 4 New Yorker announced that the most powerful radio station in the world, RADIO LUXEMBOURG, in the small European country, Luxembourg, had been captured by the Americans. This station broadcasts in three languages every day, and has a long distance reception of nine to ten thousand miles. There is a man on the Morningside College campus who knows just what this outstanding achievement means to the Allies. He is Maestro Henri Pensis, the former musical director of the Radio Luxembourg.

The cream of European musicians came under the baton of Mr. Pensis. The 120 men in his orchestra represented eight different countries: Russia, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Germany, and Italy. Mr. Pensis always spoke in two languages, French and German, when conducting, and often used a third language—ancient as man—sign language. The orchestra played every day except Sunday, and two major symphonic concerts were broadcast every week. Music lovers from all parts of the world enjoyed these concerts and expressed their appreciation in letters ranging from San Francisco, North Africa, India, and China.

Mr. Pensis not only won acclaim from his radio audience, but also from the crowds of listeners who heard him as guest conductor in London, Paris, Brussels, Vienna, Berlin, Warsaw and Rome. Contrary to popular opinion, Mr. Pensis found England to be the most music-minded in the world. Once every month, commencing in 1934, he was guest conductor in Paris, where he received his greatest ovation. In 1938, the World's Fair was held in Paris, and each country was invited to send its outstanding orchestra to compete for international honor. Maestro Henri Pensis and his orchestra were awarded the golden medal of the city of Paris for an unsurpassed performance of the NINTH SYMPHONY by Beethoven. The Parisian critic, Louis Aubert, praised his genius in LE JOURNAL: "The audience enthusiastically acclaimed the performance, making of it a literal triumph for Henri Pensis, whose sober and efficacious leadership bows to the most radical differences of style."

Mr. Pensis has studied with the great men in the world of music—men like Cesar Thomson; Bram Eldering (the octogenarian who recently was killed by a bomb); Dr. Unger, the authority on composition; Jarnach, the modernist; and Abendroth, the finest German conductor at that time. Abendroth collaborated with Furtwengler, who is perhaps better known in America.

In 1940 the Pensis family left Luxembourg, via Paris and Naples for the United States. Mr. Pensis was impressed by the Rock of Gibraltar which bristled threateningly against the Mediterranean sky. He has a great love for mountains, especially those in his native Luxembourg. After eight days Mr. and Mrs. Pensis and son Henri (who is now a freshman at Morningside College) arrived in New York City.

Mr. Pensis' European achievements as conductor and composer have been equaled by his continued success in America. In the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair he conducted the first symphony concert. The two concerts he directed in Carnegie Hall were a tremendous success. For one year and half he was conductor of the New Jersey Philharmonic and appeared several times as guest conductor in Philadelphia.

Today Henri Pensis is the loved and revered conductor of the Sioux City and Lincoln symphony orchestras as well as head of the Morningside violin department. Miraculously, he still finds time to compose. His latest composition is a symphonic poem, Summer Evening. "It is a musical impression of an Iowa landscape—shrouded by dusk; then revealed suddenly in a panorama of moonlit beauty." The first performance of SUMMER EVENING by the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra was enthusiastically received.

After the war Mr. Pensis will return to his progressive little country, Luxembourg, to resume his former position as musical director of Radio Luxembourg. His many friends and admirers accept the inevitable with regret, but they are thankful that the music of the Middle West, even for a short time, was raised to new heights under the baton of Henri Pensis.

Religious Emphasis Week Observed

Dr. Hal D. Bollinger, national secretary of Administration and Programs for the Board of Education of the Methodist church, from Nashville, Tennessee, was the guest speaker for "Religious Emphasis Week," which was observed March 6, 7, and 8, here on the Morningside Campus.

Those days are some of the richest in the memory of students and faculty at Morningside as they had the privilege of being host to Dr. Bollinger who was tireless in his speaking and consultations to all. His personality, so dynamic, illustrated as did his words, the fullness of the "Abundant Life."

W. S. S. F. Goal Surpassed

The goal of $253 which was set for the World Student Service Fund by the Y.W.-Y.M.C.A. in December has been met and passed.

The grand total of $303.33 was raised by the students and faculty of the school for the W. S. S. F. Morningside is now listed on the national honor roll of contributors to the World Student Service Fund as a college raising more than one dollar per student enrolled. It is a good record and one of which to be proud!

This is the second year in which Morningside college participated in sending funds to aid students of the world whom the war has bitterly affected.

Third Mid-year Commencement

Six students were awarded bachelor's degrees from Morningside college at midyear commencement exercises held at Grace Methodist church on January 25.

Chancellor Benjamin F. Schwartz of Nebraska Wesleyan university at Lincoln gave the address on "Some Key's for Life's Doors."

Receiving bachelor of arts degrees were Elmer H. VanderBerg of Sioux Center, now a member of the armed forces; Lloyd Alfred Peterson of Sioux City and Lyla Hanson Springer of Battle Creek. Bachelor of science degrees were awarded Gladyce Lobb, Lucille Pippett Hakala and Ernest Baer, all of Sioux City.

Alumni Scholarship Program

The Morningsider Executive Committee, under the leadership of the president, Simeon Hickman '25, has been actively engaged in setting up a procedure for the recognition of outstanding seniors in the Sioux City high schools. The funds provided through the Living Endowment and other alumni giving are to be used as the foundation of the award.

It is planned that a scholarship shall be awarded to each graduating class from Central, East and Leeds High Schools. The award will be for $100 per year and is to be held for four years. The student must continue to rank in the upper half of the class to remain eligible from year to year.

The selection of the scholarship winner is to be made by the faculty of the several high schools on the basis of the student most likely to succeed in Morningside. Consideration is to be given to scholarship, interest, citizenship and probable success. The certificate of award will be presented by a member of the high school faculty at Commencement.

The plans for awards are being made by separate committees in each high school; at Central, Forrest Fowler, '23; at East, Miss Loretta VanNess; at Leeds, Mrs. Alice Hall Dawson, '27.

All agree that this stimulation of interest has produced a most wholesome effect in high school as well as in the college.

Bob Held One of Nation's Top Cagers

The following article concerning Bob Held, ex '44, comes from Fort Riley, Kan., where Sgt. Held is stationed with the cavalry.

Now that most of the basketball teams have finished singing the praises of their star point makers, the Fort Riley Ramblers would like to step front and center and talk about their Bob Held of Sioux City, who has tallied 442 points in 22 games for the local team this season for an average of 20 points per contest.

The brawny ballhawk has been the Ramblers' mainstay all season as the Ramblers won 15 and lost seven, and he sparked them to the Seventh service command finals last weekend as winners of their section title.

Held's best one-game total this year was 29 points. Scoring, however, isn't his only value to his team. In fact, it's the least of his values. He's a dynamic leader, and in most of the games had been the team captain. His teammates have had off days, but he hasn't. He's an indefatigable retriever, and steals balls from his opponents in mid-court and off the backboards. You can see his bobbing blond head wherever the action is hottest, and once his hands are on a ball, he never loses it. Fort Riley uses a fast break, and Held has been the spearhead, either being down the floor first or shooting a long pass to a teammate who has preceded him.

He looks more like a football player, but played the gridiron only as a freshman in college. He's 6 feet tall and weighs 195 pounds.

His basketball talent blossomed in high school, where his team lost only four games in the four years that he played with it. He was a member of the 1940 Iowa high school all-state basketball team. At Morningside he continued his brilliant cage career. In 1942 and 1943 he was selected for the all-conference team as a sophomore and junior. He still holds the conference record for the most individual points in one game, ringing up 32 points on one contest.

Resume of Basketball Season

Looking back on the basketball season, the Maroons took the short end of the winning column, but nevertheless rounded out a successful season. The team began working out early in the fall. First, there was a scattering of boys to check out a ball and take a few shots. Later, as the basketball season approached, you could be sure to find a dozen boys on the floor eager to show their qualities and play a little basketball. The boys were soon organized into a team, plenty green but anxious to play ball. Coach Dale Huff was responsible for getting the team together and was out every afternoon to work with the boys.

Early in December the boys ventured to Western Union College at LeMars and suffered a bad defeat at the hands of a more experienced LeMars five. The next weekend the Maroons met the Sioux City Air Base five, boasting an all American center and a well balanced team. The fliers handed the Maroons their second defeat of the season.

The boys went to Wayne and came out on the short end of the score.

In the last game before Christmas the Maroon cagers handed their coach a 37-27 victory over the 817th Spec. Depot. In a return game with the Nebraska State Teachers College, the Morningside five thrilled the fans with a victory over their opponents in an overtime period.

The next game with South Dakota was also an overtime game but the Morningside cagers lost by three points. The Maroons wound up their season with a game with the South Dakota State College. The boys came out on the short end of this count. Coach Huff entered his team in the local A. A. U. tournament and the Maroons advanced to the semifinals where Dakota Wesleyan knocked them off.

In reviewing the season's record we extend a vote of thanks to Dale Huff and to his assistant, Harold Bollman, '35, for their splendid job of coaching during the basketball season. Only through their initiative and untiring efforts was it possible for Morningside to have a team in intercollegiate competition this year. Although the results of all the games were not in the "win" column, the fine spirit prevalent throughout the season and the enjoyment and experience gained by the boys more than compensated for their losses. Again we express our sincere appreciation to these fine coaches for their services which they so generously gave to further Morningside's athletic program.

Our Alumni As Recruiting Assistants

Alumni everywhere can render significant service and aid the personnel staff in contacting prospective students by sending to the Admissions Office the names of outstanding high school seniors for the freshman class of 1945.

Boys and girls who have attained a high degree of scholarship; who have been active in extra-curricular activities; who have developed qualities of leadership are wanted at the College.

The names of Alumni sons and daughters are especially desired,

When these lists are received, each student recommended will receive our pictorial bulletin portraying campus life at Morningside, as well as information relative to entrance requirements, campus activities, yearly costs, etc.

Every effort will be made to make personal contact with these boys and girls.

Mr. H. W. Hartman joined the administrative staff early in February as admissions counselor, succeeding Rev. Victor Schuldt, '30. Mr. Hartman's duties for the most part at present will be recruiting new students and becoming acclimated to the college.

Mr. Hartman was graduated from Carthage college in Illinois and received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1911, later receiving his Master's degree from Morningside's traditional adversary, the University of South Dakota. He also has had summer work at the University of Chicago and the University of Iowa. Most of Mr. Hartman's experience has been as a superintendent of schools; he came directly from Ida Grove, having been there four years and prior to this at Vermillion for twelve years.

In addition to having scores of friends in this territory and an interest in people of all ages, Mr. Hartman has a special appreciation for music. He has directed the Mikado and has sung in choirs presenting the Messiah and the Elijah.

Kenneth R. Hall, '26, has resigned as chief chemist of a large British gold mining company in Venezuela and has accepted a new position at Ajo, Ariz., where he will be mining engineer for the Phelps-Dodge corporation, one of the largest copper mining companies in the world.

Mrs. Hall, (Mae Asmusen, '27), organized and taught the British mining company's staff school for eight years.

Mae temporarily will remain here, teaching in Sioux City schools. When she joins her husband in Arizona, it will be their first American home since they went to South America in 1938.

Kenneth, familiar with South American people after years of association with them, says that study of the Spanish language is essential to win friends among the South American republics. When Europeans go there, they learn the language and thereby have access to sentiments which we do not.

Marcille Bohn, '45, acted as commentator as twelve models, one by one, entered through a large heart on one side of the drawing room, modeling their costumes as Shirley Tapley, '46, played selected music, and left by way of a correspondingly heart-decorated exit on the other side.

The "spot" highlighted six showings of each of four divisions of garments—schoolwear, boudoir wear included; sportswear; tea and date dresses, and formal wear. At the conclusion of the showings, Arline and Charline Shepard, '47, twins from Storm Lake, dressed in blue formals, did a mirror act as they sang "Alice Blue Gown."

SERVICE LETTERS

To Dr. Roadman from Cpl. Darwyn Snyder, ex '45, with the Seventh Army in Alsace, France: "I wish there might have been another former student of M'side here to enjoy with me the Christmas greeting you wrote for the first page of the December Morningsider. I was thrilled and lifted out of my surroundings. If there is a cause that is worth the sacrifice of this war, then it is to be seen in living institutions like Morningside."

"The picture, too, was beautiful. Reading the Morningsider brings back fond memories."

Sgt. Harold Klousia, ex '41, writes from somewhere in Germany: "Thanks a lot for sending me the Morningsider. It helps a person to keep track of what is going on at good old Morningside. I only attended college one year but often think of the good times I had while there. Here's wishing everyone at the college the best of luck and keep those Morningsiders coming."

Capt. John Gramlich, '34, to Dr. Graber, from France: "My hospital has been tremendously busy and apparently will continue to be so. France is nice. I ran into Ed Evans, '34, a few weeks ago in Marseilles. He's with the Merchant Marine."

Ensign M. O. (Sailor-Boy) Hodges writes from the South Pacific: "When I entered port this time, I found in the midst of my mail, the Morningsider. I was very happy to see the faces of Mrs. John Patch and Dr. Berkstresser before me when I began to read it. It brought back many memories of the 15 months I spent on your campus, both as a student and as a physical education instructor."

"I am the commanding officer of the Armed Guard Unit aboard the S. S. Ville D'Anvers, a merchant cargo vessel. Since 1939 it has flown the Belgian flag, but is still owned by the United States Lines. While my gun crew are all Americans, the crew of the ship are from all over the world, with a Belgian skipper. When I hear English spoken aboard, I immediately turn around to find out who is speaking."

Mrs. Jack Loff (Myna Nickum, ex '41) writes that Jack, ex '41, Lt. (j. g.), in the navy, while in the Solomons and anchored in the "Iron Bay" at Tulagi, discovered Lt. (j. g.) Lewis Mahood, '41, on the ship at anchor next to his, so a Morningside reunion ensued in which they talked over "good ol' days." Previously, while stationed at Pearl Harbor, Jack ran into Harold "Buck" Dieters on a street corner in Honolulu. "So", concludes Myna, "the world is very small these days."

Writes Pfc. Bill Easley, ex '44, to Mr. and Mrs. "Mac": "I received your greeting card and it brought back such a flood of memories—the con, the choir, Music Camp. And what a wonderful snap of the camp. You can't imagine how grateful I am for receiving a picture of the beauties of winter here on this sub-tropic jungle island. I am no longer on New Guinea but am on just a pin head in the great Pacific."

"Wonderful student days! The memories of them, yes, and regrets, too, of hours flung away, are very much with me. The knowledge that Mr. and Mrs. Mac are still going strong and keeping alive the things we love means a great deal to me, and I am sure to all who knew you and learned from you."

Dr. Kirkpatrick Writes For 'Midland Schools'

Dr. J. E. Kirkpatrick, head of the department of education, as the guest writer of the month in the education magazine, "Midland Schools", published by the Iowa State Teachers Association, wrote an article entitled, "An Open Letter to the Teachers of Iowa". In this article Dr. Kirkpatrick discussed the progress of the "Blueprint" contribution committee. This "Blueprint" is a plan for a greatly expanded program of the ISTA, providing for an enlarged staff and increased services. The 1944 delegate assembly approved a "Blueprint contributing membership campaign" in order to secure funds to put the expanded program into operation. Dr. Kirkpatrick was appointed state-chairman of the campaign, and his letter in the "Midland Schools" magazine was written in connection with this campaign.
