SIXTY-FIFTH
COMMENCEMENT

May 1959

The President's Pen

The lush green of the campus lawn these days seems almost to suggest the vitality of a young college growing in strength as it matures in its mission.

This year's graduation activities, too, seemed to be a harbinger of significant things to come from Morningside in the field of Christian liberal arts education.

The words of support for liberal learning from the president of a great American corporation, I'm sure, did much to convey this impression to the hundreds of relatives and guests of the graduates and friends of the college who heard him speak at the 65th commencement exercises.

Commencement always is a time when we take stock of what has gone before and chart our future course, being careful to build wisely, we hope, on the solid foundations that have been laid by others.

A significant indication of this influence of the past on the future came with the dedication of the Charles City college gifts to the memory of that institution and to the continued strength of Morningside.

Commencement is also a time when the institution and its alumni appraise each other—each seeing what the other has accomplished in the years since their association was closer.

Morningside has good reason to be proud of her alumni on the basis of what we saw here on the campus during graduation days. Nine members of the class of 1909 returned to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their graduation.

We hope Morningside appeared as well in their eyes as they did in ours.

Now, with commencement 1959 fading we are looking ahead, planning for future growth and progress. We hope, sincerely, that you—wherever and wherever you are—will look ahead with us in a continuing tradition of excellence.

ON THE COVER

A look of suspense on her face, Miss Dimmitt hears a telegram of congratulations read to her by President Palmer during commencement exercises June 1. It read: "Through Congressman Charles B. Hoenen, I have learned that Miss Lillian E. Dimmitt, dean of women emeritus of Morningside college, will be honored at your commencement exercises Monday. I understand that Miss Dimmitt has completed 65 years of service on the Morningside campus.

"During this remarkable career she has strengthened the lives of a host of students and by her devoted example she has advanced the highest traditions of the college."

"Please give my congratulations and best wishes to her and to the class of 1959."

Honors Mark 65th Graduation

Sixty-fifth year graduation activities at Morningside took place May 30, 31 and June 1 in an atmosphere of enthusiasm and expectation for present and future growth and overall progress.

Miss Lillian E. Dimmitt, completing her 65th year at Morningside, was a symbol of the continuing spirit of the college. At commencement exercises June 1, Miss Dimmitt received perhaps the greatest accolade of her long career—a telegram of personal congratulations from the president of the United States.

She also received a plaque in recognition of her service signed by Iowa Methodist Bishop F. Gerald Ensley and John O. Gross, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Education.

In addition to the honors accorded Miss Dimmitt, seven former faculty members were feted for their long years of service to the college.

Length of service of Miss Dimmitt, Dr. Earl Roadman, president emeritus, Miss Laura Fischer, the late Mrs. Elizabeth MacCollin, Dr. Myron E. Graber, Mr. Henry Kanthlener, Mr. James Coss and Dr. Horace Hawthorn totaled 307 years.

They were honored at the annual alumni dinner at which Dr. Roadman was the principal speaker.

as a link with the past to those present officers and faculty of the college who are keeping faith with them.

One hundred forty-two seniors received degrees at commencement exercises June 1.

Herbert Evans, president of Peoples Broadcasting corporation, was the commencement speaker. He challenged the graduates to make use of their training in college to "develop and extend the kind of character that can control technology for the good of all."

"I would ask you to remember two things," Mr. Evans said, "man can have a better life in the future than he has ever known before, and two, he will have a better life or he will have no life at all."

"You will not be worthy of the teachings of this college, if you do not lead the world toward a better life," he emphasized.

Award High Honors

Highest honors in the graduating class were accorded Nancy Crary Vegiahn of Sioux City and Daniel G. Bullock of Inwood who graduated summa cum laude. Ten members of the class were named to the Zeta Sigma honor society.

Dr. Fred Crtmeyer, pastor of Central Methodist church of Charles City, Ia., gave the baccalaureate address Sunday morning in Allee gymnasium.

Dr. Myron E. Graber was honored at a reception Sunday afternoon at which his portrait was unveiled in Petersmeyer library on the campus.

The portrait was painted by Prof. William Zimmerman, head of the college art department, and had been commissioned about a year ago by a group of former students of Dr. Graber.

Alumni Plan Event

A committee composed of Prof. Ira J. Gwinn, '22; Ernest M. Raun, '23; and S. M. Hickman, '25, and their wives, was in charge of arrangements for the portrait unveiling.

More than 300 persons heard former President Roadman speak at the annual Alumni dinner Saturday night at the municipal auditorium.

Dr. Roadman paid tribute to great teachers and great alumni as persons who make a great college. Seven members of the class of 1909 were present at the dinner and at the reunions earlier.

Pictured above is a portion of the Dimmitt hall dining room showing the reunion luncheon Saturday of commencement weekend with the 50-year class in the foreground. Clockwise from the front of the table are Idabelle Lewis Main, Blanche Spratt, Mrs. Paul Collins, Paul Collins, Stella Mae Fry Bowman, Alvah Miller, Mrs. Alvah Miller, Mrs. Arthur Bastian, Arthur Bastian and Percy Brown.

FIFTY YEAR CLASS ATTENDS ACTIVITIES

Seven of the 19 living members of the class of 1909 marched down the aisle of Allee gymnasium in the academic procession for the 1959 commencement.

It was the climax to a three-day celebration of the 50th anniversary of their graduation. Included in the group were Mrs. Idabelle Lewis Main, Mill Valley, Cal., Blanche M. Spratt, Sioux City; Paul Collins, Marshalltown, Ia.; Mrs. Stella Mae Fry Bowman, Mound, Minn.; Alvah Miller, Brookfield, Conn.; Arthur Bastian, Miles City, Mont., and Percy Brown, Eugene, Ore.

Members of the 50-year class were housed at Lillian E. Dimmitt hall on the campus.

HONOR EIGHT FACULTY FOR LENGTHY SERVICE

Eight present and former Morningside faculty members were honored for long service to the college at the annual alumni dinner.

They are Miss Dimmitt 65 years; Miss Laura Fischer, 33 years; the late Mrs. Elizabeth MacCollin, 46 years, Dr. Earl A. Roadman, 20 years; Prof. James Coss, 34 years;

Dr. Myron E. Graber, 35 years; Dr. H. B. Hawthorn, 27 years, and Prof. Henry Kanthlener, 47 years.

Plaques were presented to these persons by R. G. ("Honie") Rogers at the alumni dinner at the municipal auditorium. Total service of the eight is 307 years.

PORTRAIT DEDICATION HONORS DR. M. E. GRABER

Nearly 200 persons gathered at Petersmeyer library Sunday afternoon of commencement weekend to honor Dr. Myron E. Graber, professor of physics and dean of men emeritus.

A portrait of Dr. Graber painted by Prof. William Zimmerman, head of the art department was unveiled and punch was served.

Prof. Ira J. Gwinn spoke briefly of Dr. Graber's dedication to teaching and to young people, and then the portrait was unveiled by Ernest M. Raun, a member of the commissioning committee.

Dr. J. Richard Palmer accepted the portrait on behalf of the college. It will hang in the library for a year for aging and then will be transferred to the physics department in Jones hall where it will hang permanently.

Dr. Graber expressed his thanks in a written statement:

Prof. Gwinn, Mr. Raun, Dr. Graber, Mr. Hickman, and Dr. Palmer pose under the portrait of Dr. Graber unveiled in the afternoon of baccalaureate Sunday.

"A thank you to my Morningside college friends for the portrait. The ideal of my life's commitment—to help build strong men and women, dedicated to God and the welfare of their fellow men—has been crowned today by the expression of your commission for this portrait memorial.

"Your tribute of affection and remembrance shall always remain the bright evening star to light the firmament of our privileged walk

CAMPUS RENOVATION HEIGHTENS MORALE

Visitors to the campus during graduation activities noted that renovation and modernization is adding to the efficiency, comfort and morale of students, faculty and administration.

Renovation of the first floor of main hall will be completed as soon as the ceiling is lowered. Improvements to date include new administrative offices in the space formerly occupied by the library, modernization of other offices, erection of canopy and false ceiling in entrance way and addition of new steel and glass doors.

Lounge Added

A faculty lounge also is located in the former library area.

The conversion of Alumni gymnasium into the Marion Jones Hall of Culture housing Petersmeyer library also was a treat for persons who had not seen it previously.

Extensive renovation has been done and is continuing in the Charles City College building, formerly the Conservatory of Music.

Faculty and administrative personnel are looking forward to the accreditation study to be done by the North Central Accrediting agency next year.

Best He's Seen

Dr. John Forbes of the agency worked with faculty and administration at a faculty workshop held commencement day and the day following. Dr. Forbes commented that the morale and spirit of camaraderie among the faculty was the best that he had seen in many visits to colleges of this type.

A faculty steering committee has been appointed to guide the self-study which will be conducted next year as part of the accrediting re-examination.

COINCIDENCE?

Graduation 1959 produced the best example yet of why Morningsiders should send their children to Morningside.

The reason seems to be simply that they're the best students. The two highest ranking students in the class of 1959 were Nancy Cray Veglahn and Daniel G. Bullock, both of whom received summa cum laude honors—the highest possible.

Mrs. Veglahn is the daughter of Mrs. Ralph Cray (Margaret Coleman, '26 of Sioux City), and Mr. Bullock is the son of Dr. Grant D. Bullock ('29) of Inwood.

In addition to her high scholarship, Mrs. Veg'ahn was an officer of Alpha Delta Pi social sorority and was editor of the Collegian Reporter when she was a sophomore. Her husband, Don Veglahn of Sioux Falls, received Ma'na Cum Laude honors at graduation. They will live in New Haven, Conn., next year where Mr. Veglahn will be studying in the Yale university divinity school.

Mr. Bullock was president of the student council in his senior year and will enter the State University of Iowa medical school in the fall.

SPORTS

Athletes In Full Spring Schedule

Morningside athletes participated in four spring sports as part of a growing program.

Trackman, under the tutelage of Coach Jack Jennett, were victorious in one quadrangular meet and took part in a full slate of track and field meets including the Drake relays at Des Moines. In many cases, relay teams and individuals barely missed the top positions. They finished fourth in the North Central conference meet.

Next year's squad should be considerably stronger with a number of this year's sophomore performers expected to return for their second season of competition with the experience necessary for a winning team.

Tennis and golf squads, under coaches Dr. Walter Benjamin and A. W. Buckingham, respectively, also played a full spring schedule and garnered their share of top spots.

Coach Don Protector's baseball squad finished the season with a 6 won, 9 lost mark, largely due to some unscheduled mound disasters.

The baseballers also were handicapped by lack of a regular field on which to practice. The squad traveled to Lawton to practice and played games in Soos park.
