No. 3

RECIPIENTS OF HONORARY DEGREES

Three honorary degrees were conferred at graduation services Tuesday, June 1, at Morningside College. Recipients were, left to right, Myron Insko, '14, of San Diego, Calif., executive secretary for Goodwill Industries of San Diego county; Robert N. Van Horne, '00, head of the Mathematics Department of the Morningside College; and Walter L. Breaw, '16, pastor of the Methodist church at Humboldt, Iowa. Dr. Earl A. Roadman conferred the degrees.

Dr. Myron E. Graber, dean of men, presented a degree of Doctor of Humane Letters to Prof. VanHorne. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was presented to Rev. Insko by Rev. John P. Hantla of the Goodwill Industries of Sioux City and to Rev. Breaw by L. B. Snyder of Humboldt.

Commencement Activities

Baccalaureate was held in Grace Methodist Church Sunday, May 30. Dr. Frank A. Mossman, '03, delivered the sermon, "Campus Life of America and the Future of Democracy." Dr. Mossman was former head of Morningside College and now is president of Southwestern College at Winfield, Kansas. Dr. John V. Madison gave the invocation, Prof. James A. Coss read the scripture reading and Dr. Frank G. Bean gave the benediction.

Forty-seven members of the 1943 graduating class marched for the last time as students across the campus to Grace Methodist Church Tuesday morning, June 1, where the 50th annual commencement exercises took place.

Rev. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, was the principal speaker, his topic being "Democratic Youth In the World Tomorrow." Dr. Smith graduated from Southwestern College under Dr. Mossman. Rev. Victor Schuldt gave the prayer and Mrs. Elizabeth MacCollin sang. Rev. John Madison read scripture.

Dean George E. Hill presented the class of 1943 to President Roadman, who conferred the degrees on 47 graduating seniors, 10 of whom will not complete their degrees until August.

President Roadman also paid tribute to the class of 1903, 7 of the original 13 being present at the services.

The following students were elected into Zeta Sigma: James Adams, Robert Green, Lainys Kitterman, Mary Patterson, Walter Wertz, Donald Reynolds, and Louise Madison Walters.

Degrees to the graduating class included bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of public school music. In addition, 19 students received two-year teaching certificates.

Diplomas in absentia were granted to six members of the class who are in the armed service and to Faith Buchner, ferry command pilot at Sweetwater, Texas. Members in military service who received degrees are Frank Kahoun, Lowell Ralston, Clarence VerSteege, William Power, and Francis Kingsbury.

Prof. VanHorne spoke at an alumni class reunion luncheon Monday noon, May 31, at the Mayfair Hotel.

Seniors were inducted into the Tribe of the Sioux at a Morningsider dinner given in the evening of May 31, at Grace Church. Mayor David F. Loepf, Prof. VanHorne, Ray Toothaker, and Prof. Ira Gwinn had charge of the ceremony.

Speakers included Rev. Madison, Victor Schuldt, Dr. Roadman, and Capt. E. A. Kitzmiller, commander of the 81st college training detachment.

A skit, Here Comes the Class of 1903, which was presented by the class when it was graduated 40 years ago, dressed in tall silk hats and carrying canes, was re-enacted.

Seniors who took part in the evening program included Mary Lou Fairchild, vocalist; Carol Hedeon, violinist; and Wilson Reynolds, who paid tribute to the seven members of the class in military service.

Rev. George W. Dunn was toastmaster, in the absence from the city of Parnell H. Mahoney, president of the alumni association.

Fortieth Year Reunion

The class of 1903 in celebrating the 40th anniversary of graduation from Morningside College contributed much interest and enthusiasm to the Commencement Program of 1943. Of 13 members of the class, 11 are living, and of these, 7 were present for the reunion. Those who attended the reunion events were Dr. F. E. Mossman, '03, and Mrs. F. E. Mossman from Winfield, Kansas; Mr. R. G. McIsaac, '03, and Mrs. R. G. McIsaac from Parkdale, Oregon; Mrs. Pearl Woodford Buchner, '03, from Chicago, Ill.; Mr. D. M. Simpson, '03, from Kenosha, Wis.; Mr. Lorne I. Smylie, '03, from Spirit Lake, Ia.; Mr. Ray Toothaker, '03, and Mrs. Ray Toothaker, '04, from Sioux City, Ia.; Mr. M. F. McDowell, '03, and Mrs. M. F. McDowell from Sioux City, Iowa.

Dr. Mossman, '03, and former President of Morningside College had been chosen to give the Baccalaureate address on Sunday morning, May 31. Official recognition was given to the members of the class of '03 at that service. The class group was invited, also, to attend the reception for seniors and friends given at 5 o'clock by President and Mrs. Roadman at their residence on Garretson Avenue.

On the following Monday morning the class group was entertained at breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. McDowell, where tables were set in the cosy garden, and breakfast was cooked at the open fireplace. To the accompaniment of singing birds, the '03 group enjoyed recalling reminiscences of former days and in reading messages and letters from absent class members. These messages included an article published in a leading newspaper and written by Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, '03, President of the University of Michigan, a letter from Mrs. Sophie Hieby Crane, '03, San Diego, Calif., and a note of appreciation of the illustrious '03 class, written by Dr. E. M. Buchner, Chicago, and read by his wife, Mrs. Pearl W. Buchner.

At noon the class again was recognized at a special table at the alumni luncheon held at the Mayfair Hotel for all class reunions. In the evening at the annual Morningside College dinner, held this year in the dining room at Grace Church, the '03's contributed much hilarity and distinction by appearing in stovepipe hats, white gloves and carrying canes, a special feature of '03 days. They contributed an interesting part in the evening's program.

At noon on Tuesday, after the Commencement exercises, the class was entertained at luncheon at the Scribbin's Tea Room, together with other distinguished Commencement visitors, as guests of President and Mrs. Roadman. The day closed with an informal picnic supper in the beautiful gardens of the Morningside Nursery where Mr. and Mrs. Ray Toothaker had invited friends and students, alumni and faculty members to visit and renew friendships of former days. "A wonderful inspiration" was the verdict of each class member as they parted, thanking Mr. and Mrs. Toothaker in appreciation of their efforts in planning and managing such a delightful and interesting program for the reunion of the class of '03.

College Selected for North Central Study

Morningside College has recently been selected as a participating institution for the North Central Association study of teacher education. Directed by Dr. Russell Cooper, this study is a cooperative experiment for the improvement of teacher education in liberal arts colleges. Cooperating colleges set up a special committee of staff members to encourage research and improvement in the college curriculum. The committee for Morningside College is to be headed by Professor Ira J. Gwinn. Professor Gwinn is now in attendance at a special workshop for college people being held at the University of Minnesota. He is gathering information on certain problems outlined by the college committee and will return to the campus prepared to exercise leadership in improving our program of liberal arts training for teachers. Other members of the committee are Professor Lillian Dimmitt, Professor James Reistrup, Professor Mendal B. Miller, and Dean George E. Hill.

RESULT OF ALUMNI TRUSTEE ELECTION

As a result of the balloting through the Morningsider, the committee announces the election of Ernest M. Raun, '23, and Ralph C. Prichard, '15 to the Board of Trustees of Morningside College. These trustees will serve for a three year term expiring in 1946.

Morningsiders In Print

First copies of Hillis Lory's latest book, Japan's Military Masters, published by the Viking Press, have arrived in Sioux City and are being read with interest by persons who knew the author as a schoolboy in Morningside and later as a student at Morningside College where he received his bachelor of arts degree in 1922. He received his master's degree at Columbia University.

From 1925 to 1929 he served as a member of the faculty of Hokkaido Imperial University in Japan and since that time has devoted virtually all his time to lecturing and instructing both here and abroad.

During that time he made several trips to Japan and other oriental countries and two complete trips around the world. He knows personally most of the important figures in far east political and military circles and frequently has discussed far eastern problems with them.

Because of his extensive study and his long firsthand contact with oriental peoples, Dr. Lory is considered an authority on far eastern problems. Recognition of that fact is given by Joseph C. Grew, former United States ambassador to Japan, who wrote the foreword to this new book.

Japan's Military Masters is clearly and interestingly written in a style that holds the reader's attention from beginning to end. It is predicted on the author's belief that the principal prerequisite to victory is "know your enemy."

The author makes no pretense of giving sensational revelations, but those who read the volume are destined to experience the shattering of any illusions they may have that victory over Japan will be easy of accomplishment.

The book explains in detail the organization of the Japanese army, its historical and religious background, its training, its leadership and its long preparation for war.

Lory does not believe that Japan can be defeated by bombing expeditions alone. "Contrary to general opinion," he says, "Japanese resistance to large scale bombing can and will be most effective."

"An appalling blunder in our thinking," says the author, "is the widespread belief that time is with us. On the contrary, time is with Japan . . . Japanese have the raw materials. They have the manpower that can be trained. We have no monopoly on mass production. Japan, even in conquered areas, is adapting it to her needs. Japan's most urgent need is time. That we must not give her."

The Japanese, the author says, are prepared to accept everything except defeat. We can expect Japan to fight virtually until the last soldier is killed and her last ship is sunk.

Japan's Military Masters is an interesting book and one that admirably fulfills its primary function—to "know your enemy."

Mrs. Lory is the former Sarah Drury, '24, and their home is in Palo Alto, Calif. Mr. Lory has dedicated his book to his two small daughters who, he states, were no help to him in writing the book.

If you have read the June 14 issue of Newsweek or June 21 issue of Time, no doubt you saw the account of a study made by Dean George E. Hill, professor of Educational Psychology, of the daily newspaper comic strips for the University of Chicago with the purpose of determining how comics might influence a child's vocabulary. As conscientious parents, you will be pleased to know that his findings indicate newspaper comics do not harm a child's vocabulary, but, in fact, may help him build vocabulary meanings.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

Morningside College and community raised $125 for the support of Hwa Nan College in Foochow, China, during the week of May 16. Many Morningsiders will remember Lucy Wang, '21, who is president of Hwa Nan.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Emme and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burris celebrated their silver wedding anniversaries jointly at an open house Sunday afternoon, May 6 in the Emme home, 3923 Peters Avenue.

Prof. Leo Kucinski, for 15 years a member of the faculty of Morningside Conservatory and former director of Monahan Fost Band and conductor of the Sioux City Symphony, has been commissioned a second lieutenant. Lieut. Kucinski is attending a special service training school at Washington and Lee University, and will be assigned as a supervisor of music in one of the army's service commands at the completion of the course.

Dr. J. E. Kirkpatrick, head of the Education Department, has been named a member of the Iowa Teachers' Association Executive Committee to fill an unfinished term.

Summer Session of '43 a War-Time Affair

With an enrollment of 127 students, the 1943 Summer Session has gotten off to a flying start. The student body this summer is distinguished in two special ways: it is a very serious and determined group and it is heavily weighted with young people seeking to accelerate their college training. Seventeen-year-old boys have entered college for the first time this summer in much larger number than in the past. Regular students of the year '42-'43 have enrolled in larger than usual number. Staff members are, for the most part, the regular instructors of the past year. Miss Harriet Woods, of Clarinda Junior College, is returning as visiting professor of Geography. Professor Pritchard of the 81st C.D.T. faculty is helping out with the Physics instruction during Professor Gwinn's absence.

Co-Incidence

Dr. William VanHorne, '36, son of Prof. and Mrs. R. N. VanHorne, and Dr. Jason L. Saunderson, Jr., '35, son of Coach and Mrs. J. M. Saunderson, who grew up side by side on Sioux Trail in Morningside, met unexpectedly for the first time in six years at the American Physics Convention at Pennsylvania State College at State College, Penn.

William is head of the chemistry research laboratory at Pennsylvania State College, engaged in research work for Rohm and Haas of Philadelphia and Jason was attending the convention as a member of the Physics Research Dept. of the Dow Chemical Company in Midland, Michigan.

Miss Loveland

Some time in the 90's a girl, recently graduated from Smith College, joined the faculty of Epworth Seminary as teacher of English. The Principal at that time was Dr. Wilson Seeley Lewis, later President of Morningside College and Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The young lady in question was Miss Helen I. Loveland, Professor of English, Emerita, in Morningside College.

Teachers at Epworth at that time were "handpicked" with the result that Dr.

Miss Loveland

Lewis had gathered a faculty that would compare favorably with that of many small colleges of that day. In fact, certain courses were given college credit at standard mid-western colleges. Others on the Epworth faculty at that time were Miss Florence Fulton, known to Morningsiders as Mrs. Lewis, and Mr. William Dodge Lewis who was for many years editor of the John C. Winston publications and joint editor of the Winston English Dictionary. While Miss Loveland had come from the effete east she immediately adapted herself to the conditions of a mid-western preparatory school and soon became a favorite with the students. At that time she showed that sense of judgment, wisdom and liberality which characterized her throughout her career as a teacher. Many a student of that day owes much to Miss Loveland for the self-confidence, aspirations and ideals which she inspired.

From Epworth Seminary Miss Loveland was called to the chair of English in Upper Iowa University. When Dr. Lewis became President of Morningside College he brought her from Upper Iowa to become head of the department of English. This position Miss Loveland held until her retirement from active teaching several years ago, interrupted only once when she took sabbatical leave for study at Oxford University, England.

If the history of Morningside College were written, it would of necessity give a large place to Helen I. Loveland. She has always stood for high standards of scholarship and broad liberal culture. Her sympathetic understanding of the problems of young people and her noble ideals of character have done much to shape the lives of the students who have come under her instruction. She has lived for these students. The many hours of an always heavy teaching load were put in gladly for the College and for her students. Even now one of her greatest pleasures is to have an old Morningsider come to her home at 3607 Peters Avenue to call. That affection for her students was a great one and it still exists.

"I'D LOVE TO LIVE IN LOVELAND"

These were the words of a familiar ditty adopted as their own by the girls of "Loveland Cottage," "way back when" I first lived there. They became increasingly true as time went on; we really "loved" to live there. It was never a mere place to eat and sleep: there was a feeling of unity—almost of family solidarity — that seems to me unique.

Why was this so? I have come to think the reasons were two—Miss Helen and Miss Elizabeth Loveland. Truly Christian gentlewomen, they manifested a personal interest in every one of us and soon gained a knowledge of our home and family backgrounds. Was one of us timid? That one was drawn out and encouraged to contribute to the talk at table. Had another a too-cutting wit? Ways could be found to sheath its edge. If haste (or hunger) made us forget our manners, a quizzical sidelong glance from Miss Helen who sat at the center of one side of the long table restrained us without drawing the attention of the rest. Good conversation on matters of interest to us all was the rule, enforced only by her adroit suggestion and skillful leading.

About that table we met distinguished guests—bishops of the church, returned missionaries, Y. W. secretaries, and people who were accomplishing things in Sioux City. Equally welcome were our own relatives and friends.

Miss Elizabeth was the guardian of our physical well-being. Her brisk and efficient management of the students (boys and girls), who helped themselves to education by helping her, insured that lawn and garden would be cared for, floors and furniture dusted and polished, dishes thoroughly washed and dried, and all of us well and promptly fed. More than one man and woman, now in positions of honor and responsibility, have Miss Elizabeth to thank for honest habits of work and the conviction that "getting by" is not good enough.

Very frequently we went from breakfast to the living room where we stood to sing a few verses of favorite hymns and listen to a brief passage of Scripture. Or sometimes we recited favorite verses or joined in a familiar Psalm. Prayer followed, led sometimes by Miss Helen or one of our number: at other times sentence prayers from the group of unison prayers were used. No one was compelled to this exercise but few of us cared to absent ourselves, finding in it a source of strength as well as of unity.

Holidays and birthdays were appropriately celebrated and we who had vacation time anniversaries might choose a day in the school year for our celebration. Great was the interest when the birthday cake went around the long table 'til claimed by the celebrant.

An interesting custom had to do with favorite menus. Each of us submitted three, one for each meal; when they appeared on the table we claimed our own and sometimes came in for much good-natured "ribbing" for our peculiar tastes or strange combinations of dishes.

For a number of years on February 22 (while the male population attended the Men's Banquet) the girls staged a colonial wedding. Elaborate preparations were made, and costumes evolved. "Old girls" living or teaching nearby, returned to share in the fun and enjoy the "Washington Dinner" complete with cherry pie and hatchets.

Yes, we truly did "love to live in Loveland" under the beneficent care of the Lovelands, whom generations of "Lovelanders" rise up to call blessed.

Anna Beard Madison, '16.

MORNINGSIDE COLLEGE CHOIR SERIES RELEASED

As the result of Professor MacCollin's desire to have the Morningside College Choir represented in the field of published music, a set of new American choral works has been compiled and recently released through the interest and cooperation of J. Fischer and Brother, New York music publishers.

The edition is known as the Morningside College Choir Series, selected and edited by Paul MacCollin, and it offers a variety of numbers particularly suited to high school and college singing groups.

The Series will be expanded steadily, and at present the following composers and their works are included: Dr. Wayne Barlow, of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y.; Madrigal for a Bright Morning; Dr. Matthew N. Lundquist, Director of the Department of Music, Niagara University, Niagra Falls, N. Y.; Evening Song; Miss Frances MacCollin, Philadelphia composer and lecturer: All My Heart This Night Rejoices; Dr. Leo Sowerby, Chicago composer, teacher and organist: God Who Made the Earth; and Thomas Canning, of the Morningside Conservatory of Music: Three Old Nursery Rhymes.

Conference Record

Two items of recent news will interest all Morningsiders. First, the annual collection for Morningside from the Northwest Iowa Conference of the Methodist Church leads the nation in per capita giving for church colleges. The record was reported in the June 3, 1943 issue of the Christian Advocate, which is the Methodist weekly with 250,000 readers (largest in Protestantism). The following is a quotation from the story:

"The pace for increased support for conference institutions is being set now by several Conferences. Northwest Iowa, which supports Morningside College, has the highest per capita record for giving to the current support of an educational institution. If the whole Church would follow the example set by the Methodists of this Conference, the giving from the Church would be $2,720,000, or a quarter of a million more than all of our colleges get now from their endowment investments."

The second item concerns the success of the annual Sioux City spring drive for current support. The campaign for $30,000 dollars was more easily executed and with less effort than in previous years. A special feature inaugurating the solicitation was a gift guest luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Van Eaton, of the O. P. Skaggs system, for one hundred and fifteen of the workers.

and is in the station hospital at Camp Gruber.

Cadet John M. Thompson, ex '45, to Betty Golden, both of Sioux City, May 1 at Waukesha, Wisconsin. Cadet Thompson is a member of the Army Air Corps attending Carroll College in Waukesha.

Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Harrington held open house recently for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kelly (Marilyn Harrington), ex '42 and '43) who were married in Washington, D. C., on May 12th.

Nadine Lindquist, '39, to Dale Flinders, '39, June 19 in Boston. Dale is taking special training in meteorology at the Mass. Institute of Technology in Boston. After graduation he taught mathematics for three years at Kalam, Burma, but returned to the United States just before the outbreak of the war. Nadine has taught in North Texas State Teachers College in Denton, Texas, and will be remembered as an accomplished pianist and vocalist.

Celia Fordyce, ex '42, of Sioux City, to Aviation Cadet W. B. Walters June 13 in Fresno, Calif., where Cadet Walters is taking flight training at the Santa Ana Army Air Base. Celia was an instructor in the high school at Sherman, South Dakota.

Arlene Swanson, ex '44, of Omaha, in Reno, Nevada, to Lieut. Iuinn, U.S.N.R., of New York. Mrs. Iuinn is employed by the Navy on Treasure Island, San Francisco.

McKnight Dies in Enemy Camp

Lieut. Melvin E. McKnight, ex '42, army air force pilot who was captured by the Japanese more than a year ago in the southwest Pacific area, died May 21, according to a war department message which was received by the lieutenant's mother, Mrs. Lillian McKnight, 1903½ S. Patterson St.

Lieut. McKnight had completed two years at Morningside College when he enlisted in the air force in September, 1940. After receiving training at Kelly Field, Texas, he was given the choice of becoming an instructor or going on active duty as a pursuit pilot. He chose the latter, and in June, 1941, was sent to the Philippines.

The flier fought during the battle of Manila and in defense of Bataan. He was among the thousands of Americans who were captured by the enemy when Bataan fell.

NOTICE

Due to the fact that the campaign among alumni and ex-students of Sioux City is not yet finished, the complete list of contributors to the Living Endowment Fund will be published in the September issue of the Morningsider.
