ON OUR COVER:

In preparation for a special showing in 1973, the Art Department is devoting added attention toward Morningside's permanent collection of original works. Among the most impressive pieces is the lithograph Frenchman Marc Chagall completed about 1934, "Joshua Receives Moses' Blessing." It was selected for the Morningsider cover by Department Chairman Frank Breneisen.

Other major works in the collection include lithographs or etchings by the following artists (nationalities are included to indicate the international flavor): Francisco Goya, Spanish; Rembrandt van Rijn, Dutch; George Roualt, French; George Grosz, German; Pablo Picasso, Spanish-French; Thomas Moran, American; and Kathe Kollwitz, German.

The department is anxious to acquire worthwhile works of art to augment the collection. Those who would like to help should contact Mr. Breneisen.

The President's Pen

As December arrived upon the scene, the Morningside campus experienced a transformation. There was a renewed sense of purpose — and perhaps a hint of urgency — as final examinations and the end of the semester loomed before students and faculty. Suddenly a milestone had been reached in the adventure we all began last September, and to borrow a somewhat hackneyed phrase, the "moment of truth" was at hand.

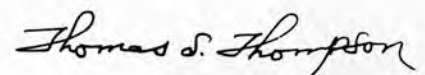

But as pressing as the end of the semester is to all, there is another aspect to campus life in December — a warm side that reflects the preparation of each one of us for the Christmas season. It is a time for a measure of self-examination, of course; a time when we should reflect upon the great gift that God has given us through the birth of His Son, and the manner in which we should prepare ourselves to properly express our gratitude on Christmas Day.

And yet Christmas is forever a joyful season, and we express our love for God through carols, cards and kindness toward one another. At Morningside during December, the Christmas spirit is wholly evident.

The large, handsomely decorated tree prepares the scene in the main dining room of the Commons, as though establishing the theme for the lesser trees in the residence halls and buildings. And there are the traditional ceremonies such as the Hanging of the Green, when the President's wife reads the Christmas Story and the residents of Dimmitt Hall, singing Christmas carols, decorate the building with greenery.

Christmas music was featured at the December presentation of the Concert Choir and there were several parties for students and the staff. Mrs. Thompson and I hosted 57 members of the Religious Life Council at a buffet dinner at the President's residence Dec. 3. An open house during the holiday season for administrative staff and the faculty has become a much enjoyed traditional event at the President's residence.

I wish that all of you could experience with us the special atmosphere that pervades the campus during December. Since that is impossible, I will presume to speak in behalf of the students, faculty and staff at Morningside and wish each one of you a very blessed Christmas and God's best for you in 1973.

Review, Outlook

"Business and education should weld a partnership which serves to advance mutual service to each other. Let each of us open our doors, let us have dialogs and visits, and let us exchange ideas and examine goals."

—President Thompson in his inaugural address, April 1970

Increasingly the college is reaching out toward the community. A governmental affairs seminar focuses on the problems of municipal government . . . dozens of SIE projects establish links with local schools, volunteer groups and social agencies.

And several new approaches either were adopted this fall or are soon to be unveiled.

In November, Morningside announced the creation of an Institute for Management Development with the objective of providing management training, technical seminars, research and consultative services to Siouxland business and industry.

The institute's first venture is a series of management development courses which will be introduced in January and offered to the community. Iowa Beef Processors, one of the nation's largest packers with plants and offices in a number of states, will make use of the Morningside program by making it available to personnel throughout the organization.

Morningside's Business Administration Department, under the direction of its new chairman, Dr. William G. Phillips, will supervise and coordinate similar management development courses at colleges in the vicinity of other IBP plants.

Five other Siouxland firms engage in manufacturing or finance have expressed an interest in the program and are investigating its provisions, according to Dr. Phillips.

The Business Administration Department, with the help of the Internal Revenue Service, is also inaugurating a service in January for low-income taxpayers.

Under faculty and IRS guidance, Morningside students will establish centers in various parts of the city and provide free assistance in preparing individual income tax returns. Perhaps 20 to 30 student volunteers will be involved in the program this winter and next spring.

In addition to helping low-income groups, the service is intended to provide valuable experience for students.

And over in Jacobsen Annex, community service and student training have provided motivation for another project. The Psychology Department has initiated a major program of study in Industrial Psychology, designed to equip the graduating student with the expertise needed for today's jobs in personnel management and human factors engineering.

WORKSHOPS, SPEAKERS ADD TO FALL TERM

Convocations, seminars and workshops brought a number of nationally prominent people to Morningside during the fall term. They discussed such diverse subjects as education, music, government, art, international affairs and consumerism.

Composer and conductor Sam Morgenstern and an internationally recognized authority on ceramics, Paul Soldner, each spent several days on campus, lecturing, working with students and conducting workshops for townspeople and high school pupils.

Conservative educator Donald Barr, author and headmaster of the Dalton School in New York, addressed a convocation audience and then spoke at the Superintendents Conference. Iowa's new State Superintendent of Schools, Robert D. Benton, also spoke at the conference.

Insight into mainland China's internal affairs and foreign policy was provided by Alan Romberg, officer in charge of the Asian-Communist Affairs desk at the State Department, in a day-long visit sponsored by the History and Political Science Department.

Municipal affairs and consumer action were topics of convocation programs by Cornelius "Conny" Bodine, business administrator of Newark, N.J., and two leaders of "Nader's Raiders", Donald Ross and Peter Petkas.

An excellently staged production, "Roar of the Greasepaint, Smell of the Crowd", and Moliere's "Tartuffe" highlighted the Klingler-Neal schedule.

ENROLLMENT DIPS FOR FALL TERM

Enrollment for the fall term was officially announced as 1,257 full-time undergraduate students, and the total number on campus was raised to 1,527 by 68 part-time undergraduates, 22 graduate students and 180 evening school registrants.

The four per-cent gain which Morningside recorded in September 1971 was erased by a four-per cent loss, leaving the college's latest full-time enrollment at one less student than in September 1970. The decline was considerably less than that experienced by many other colleges and universities throughout the country.

UPHAM RETURNS TO WASHINGTON

Cyril B. Upham, '15, is back in the nation's capitol after serving as adjunct professor of finance at Morningside during the fall semester. "Cy", who was a special assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau during the Roosevelt era and later held high posts in the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, advised Morningside's administrative offices during his stay on campus.

DR. CYRIL B. UPHAM

GOV. RAY NAMES MORNINGSIDERS

Iowa Gov. Robert Ray has named two members of the Morningside College staff to posts on important commissions in the state government.

Dr. Gary Koerselman of History and Political Science was appointed to the aggressively active Civil Rights Commission, which is concerned with discrimination against minorities and the handicapped.

The governor named Mrs. Joanne Soper, the college's director of Community Learning Projects and co-ordinator of SIE, to the new Iowa Commission on the Status of Women. The object of the commission, the governor said, is to help break down barriers of sex discrimination and open up more opportunities for women to move into key decision-making roles in business and government.

CERAMICS FESTIVAL ATTRACTS VISITORS

The Art Department followed up on last February's successful ceramics show with Ceramic Invitational II, another national invitational show in Eppley Gallery in October. Five of the nation's most important ceramists, selected by Paul Soldner, submitted pieces. Most were contemporary and related to the raku process.

Several hundred high school and college students from Iowa and surrounding states attended a two-day workshop presented by Soldner under the joint sponsorship of Morningside and the Iowa Arts Council.

LIBRARIAN RECEIVES AWARD FROM ASCAP

Vernon Martin, director of library services at Morningside, has received a $250 award from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for 1972-73.

Martin, whose work is primarily in the "standard" as distinguished from the popular field, was honored for general production in the field of music during the year rather than for one specific piece. This is the fifth year in succession that he has received an ASCAP award.

Birthday Greetings:

DR. COSS CELEBRATES HIS 100th BIRTHDAY

Former faculty member James Coss was honored on his 100th birthday Nov. 7 with a party at the Billy Sunday Retirement Home in Sioux City, where he and Mrs. Coss now live. A double quartet from the Music Department sang college songs and President Thompson presented Dr. Coss with a birthday cake.

In addition to the President and Mrs. Thompson and a delegation from the faculty and staff, two of the Coss' four children were present—Miss Catherine Coss, a teacher at East Junior High in Sioux City, and Florence (Mrs. Bruce Wells) of Memphis, Tenn. Their son, Dr. Jim, an internist in New York, and Margaret (Mrs. Robert Madsen) of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, attended a family celebration at the home on the previous weekend.

Dr. Coss retired as head of the Morningside Chemistry Department in 1946 after 35 years on the faculty, and was later awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree by the college. His wife, Cora, formerly gave voice lessons and was active in Sioux City clubs and organizations.

The Coss children all graduated from Morningside—Catherine in 1934, Margaret in 1936, James in 1937, and Florence in 1943. A grandson, Bill, of Port Jervis, N.Y., is presently a student at Morningside.

PUBLISHER CHOOSES WOOD COMPOSITION

A choral piece by Dr. James Wood of the Music Department was published this fall by Galaxy Music Corporation of New York and Galliard Limited of London.

"Thy Kingdom Come" (Adventiat Regnum Tuum) sets to music the words of Katherine Tynan, Irish poetess of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. It is ideally suited for presentation during the Christmas and Advent seasons.

The composition, written in 1967, was first presented a few years ago in Eppley Auditorium and was a feature of the Concert Choir's program this December.

A program of Dr. Wood's music was presented in September at a week's festival and workshop at the Okalona Baptist Church in Louisville, Ky. Dr. Wood was director of the festival.

FALL FESTIVAL HOMECOMING

Student Body President Ed Johnson, senior from Storm Lake, with billboard proclaiming Fall Festival week and volunteer's theme: "We Need You."

Students elected Cheryl Burmeister Fall Festival Princess and Homecoming Queen from a field of 18 candidates. Miss Burmeister is a senior from Spring Valley, Minn.

Mike Coborn, Ankeny sophomore, was among students who contributed 157 pints of blood to Siouxland Community Blood Bank. More than 100 others signed up but were rejected for medical reasons.

Something new complimented the traditional Homecoming activities in October as students dedicated themselves to a week of service projects designed to help the community and college.

Hoping to meet a goal of 2,111 hours of volunteer service, the students gave parties and picnics for the elderly, the mentally retarded and disadvantaged children, painted the exterior of a halfway house for women alcoholics and the interior of several classrooms on campus, spruced up the college grounds and city parks, made puppets for youngsters at hospitals and children's homes, and donated blood to the local blood bank.

In all, they compiled almost 3,000 hours of service to others.

Nor were the customary Homecoming activities forgotten. The parade wasn't held this year, but there were the women's and M Club luncheons, class reunions, the alumni banquet and Homecoming dance. And, of course, the big football game with the University of South Dakota. The Coyotes proved too much despite a valiant Morningside effort and the Chiefs lost 41-6.

Murals on Commons windows carried out the theme, "We Need You." In front, Pat Coburn, junior from Red Wing, Minn., and Cathy Morell, sophomore from Mechanicsburg, Pa., mix paint for Miriam Lincoln, Grinnell sophomore, and L. B. Anderson, junior from Gunnison, Colo., on ladders.

Special reunions were held by classes of '57, '62 and '67. At right, members of class of '67 register at Commons.

Traditional Women's Luncheon in Dimmitt Hall attracted graduates. Ferne Dunn Obye, '44, was chairman, Muriel Waldemer Lyle, '53, co-chairman.

M Club Luncheon in Commons was well attended. Blankets were awarded to Marlowe Evans, '22, and Bernard "Beanie" Cooper, '53.

SPORTS: A CHANGE OF SEASONS

FOOTBALL TEAM YOUTHFUL, INJURY-PRONE

Football 1972 was one of the most unusual seasons in Morningside history. The Chiefs of Coach Dewey Halford faced one of the most rugged schedules in recent history and did it with a young squad.

Only 16 lettermen were on the roster when camp opened and several of those players played only partial seasons or not at all. The Chiefs finished the campaign 2-8, setting a record for the most losses in a single campaign but much of the trouble came from unexpected areas.

First, it was one of the toughest schedules in many years. No less than five of the 1972 opponents were ranked in the top 15 of the nation at one time or another during the season. Three of those teams finished in the top 10. Not many other schools across the country could claim the same.

Secondly, the Chiefs lost 17 players either before or during the season to injuries. Included was tri-captain Mark Thiessen who was hurt on the first defensive play of the year and did not play again.

The Chiefs did whip Southwest Minnesota State in the home opener before 8,500 fans on Shrine Night, 22-3. A strong effort the following week against powerful University of Nebraska at Omaha resulted in a tough 17-8 loss that wasn't really decided until the final six seconds of play.

The other Morningside win came against NCC rival Augustana as the Chiefs made an impressive show in a 20-14 win over the Vikings. Besides UNO, other teams on the schedule that were in the top 15 of the nation included University of North Dakota (69-0), University of South Dakota (41-6), Tennessee Tech University (37-7), and North Dakota State University (48-6). The other losses came at the hands of Mankato State (34-0), University of Northern Iowa (27-13), and South Dakota State University (35-0).

The unusual part about it was that the Chiefs played well in many of the games they lost. The final scores of several of the contests do not completely tell the story or demonstrate how well the Chiefs played. Many times it was just a matter of two or three breakdowns during an entire game that proved fatal. And much of that came because of the squad's youth.

But the Chiefs are looking to the future. No less than 27 lettermen are expected back next season including 16 fulltime starters. Another good recruiting season would make the Chiefs look very optimistically toward the next several years.

Defensive end Dan Buss was named as the team's most valuable player along with making the All-NAIA District 15 team, and offensive center Ron O'Neal was picked to the All-North Central Conference team and the NAIA All-District 15 squad (unanimous). O'Neal (6-3, 262) was being considered for a spot on the 1972 NAIA All-American squad, a fitting tribute for an outstanding football player.

YOUNG BASKETBALL TEAM OPENS RUGGED SCHEDULE

A young group of Morningside College basketball players opened the 1972-73 season on a rather bleak note but the outlook for the 16th cage squad for Coach Chuck Obye looks promising.

The Chiefs kicked off a 24-game slate with a 64-63 heart-stopping loss to Nebraska Wesleyan University before journeying northward to Big Sky country to face major college foes Montana University and Montana State University. Cold shooting caught the Chiefs in 75-44 and 86-57 losses. Morningside opened its home schedule with a tough 72-63 loss to powerful Westmar College.

The problem is, the schedule gets tougher. Morningside will face non-conference opponents Kearney State, Dakota Wesleyan, and the University of Missouri — Kansas City before battling the rugged North Central Conference wars.

On the good side, the men of the "M" are a young group with only one senior on the squad — 6-6 center Bruce Jenkins — and continual improvement gives the Chiefs considerable optimism for the future.

Keying the attack are Jenkins, the leading rebounder the past two seasons and a top scorer; 6-0 guard Tom Polt, a scrappy playmaker; 6-3 speedster Freeman Berry, an improving forward who can score and rebound well; and 6-6 junior forward Scott Burgason, a rugged rebounder.

Those four lettermen teamed with JC transfer Ulysses Glenn, a 6-4 guard; squadman Rick Soligo, a 6-5 forward; Jim Carlson, a 6-4 forward; squadman Scott Otis, a 6-3 guard-forward swingman; and newcomer Dan Pomeranke, a 5-10 sophomore guard, give the Chiefs a solid nucleus.

OUTLOOK FOR MATMEN: GOOD SEASON, NATIONALS

Wrestling Coach Arnold Brandt opened up his 10th season at Morningside and it looked to be a team that could hold great promise.

Included are NAIA All-American Mike Pickford (20-6-1). The scrappy Pickford placed 6th in the nation last year as a sophomore at 134 and his presence at 126 this season holds him in high esteem. Six other regulars include 118-lb. Dave Roder (15-4-2 last year), 126-lb. Randy Thomas (4-3), 134-lb. Rick Nuss (13-3-1), 158-67-lb. Frank Thompson (21-6), 177-lb. Steve Newhard (13-8), and 190-lb. Steve Readout (14-10).

Pickford, Thompson, and Newhard were NAIA District 15 (State of Iowa) wrestling champions last year and are slated for their best seasons ever.

A tough 13-dual schedule is on tap along with five tournaments climaxed by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics National Wrestling Championships on March 8-9-10 on the Morningside campus in 4,500-seat Allee Gymnasium.

Morningside had a 12-3-1 dual meet record last year and was ranked 10th in the nation by the Amateur Wrestling News. The Chiefs finished 21st in the national tournament last year and would like to climb into the top 10 this season before the home crowd. It promises to be a very exciting schedule.

The members of three Morningside College championship football teams were honored during Homecoming weekend. Photographs were taken at the M Club banquet.

BLAINE SPANS CONTINENTS FOR BACHELOR'S DEGREE . .

At first glance, Morningside College would seem to have little in common with Hebrew University in Jerusalem. They are separated in varying degree by language, by culture and by thousands of miles of land and water.

And yet there is a common bond—a 22-year-old native of Southern Iowa who followed a circuitous route in acquiring a college education. George Blaine has the distinction of receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree from Morningside with an assist from Hebrew University.

After majoring in religious studies at Morningside during his first three college years, George was offered a year of study in Israel by the American Friends of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. The credits he earned there would be applicable toward his degree at Morningside.

Thus, in July 1971, George landed in Israel. It was quite an adjustment for a farm boy from Eldon, a small river town southeast of Ottumwa, but George found the transition less difficult than some other members of the American contingent. Homesickness, language barriers, cultural differences and disappointment trimmed by one-third the 700-800 who originally made the trip.

Although he is reluctant to blame his Israeli hosts, he feels that the program at that time lacked a great deal of organization. "Then, too," he explains, "facilities simply failed to meet the standards to which students from affluent America had become accustomed." Steps have been taken since to correct both these deficiencies, he adds.

One regret that Blaine still feels arises from the fact that there was very little contact with Israeli students at the university. By necessity, the classes for the Americans were in English while the Israelis' were conducted in Hebrew.

Primarily the program was designed for Jewish students interested in an academic and living experience in Israel. "I was one of a handful of Christians," says George. "Of course, there were no problems arising from discrimination, but I did encounter some antagonism toward Americans. Not resulting from U.S. foreign policy, but from the bad image created by American tourists."

And how does a Methodist spend Christmas in Israel? George and his German roommate joined the thousands of pilgrims who thronged Bethlehem Square, an experience that left George disappointed because the crowd was so large it gave him the sensation of being immersed in chaos.

After returning to Iowa in mid-July, Blaine received his degree at Morningside's summer commencement in mid-August, then left in September for Germany. In addition to visiting his roommate, he hopes to find work in a university setting for at least a year and learn more about the German language and customs. Eventually, he hopes to combine his interest in religion and German into one career, perhaps as a teacher or counselor.

George's father is deceased. His mother, Mrs. James Peek lives at Rural Route 4, Ottumwa. He was graduated cum laude from Morningside and was in the upper 10 per cent of his high school graduating class at Peking Community of Packwood.

FORMER STUDENT NAMED BISHOP IN AFRICA . . .

A 1964 Morningside graduate is one of two new bishops recently elected to office in the Africa Central Conference of the United Methodist Church.

In balloting at the conference's quadrennial meeting in Blantyre, Malawi, Fama (Joseph) Onema, chaplain of a United Methodist high school in Katuve, Zaire, was named Bishop of Zaire. Zaire is the former Democratic Republic of Congo (Belgian Congo). The nation adopted its new name in October 1971.

While a student at Morningside, Bishop Onema majored in philosophy. His home at the time was Leopoldville (now Kinshasha). His education in the United States was sponsored by the Methodist Church and his tuition was paid by church members at Spirit Lake, Iowa.

As a result of the election, the Angola Conference (comprising 47,989 United Methodist in the Portuguese colony on Africa's southwest coast) now has the first African bishop in its 87-year history. He is the former president of Union Seminary in Dondi, Angola, the Rev. Emilio de Carvalho.

With Bishop de Carvalho's election, the Central Conference completed the "Africanization" of its episcopacy, a process which was initiated 18 years ago.

Bishop Onema succeeds Bishop John Wesley Shungu, who was one of the first two Africans elected bishop in the Central Conference in 1964.

Thus the department is endeavoring to place students in industrial positions for short periods of time during their academic training. Exposure to such situations as personnel selection, moral assessment and test validation is what the department is seeking, and its faculty suggests that firms might use the service to carry out those projects which a concern always wanted to initiate but lacked the personnel to accomplish.

And in a similar vein, the department also hopes to involve the community in a special seminar on the psychology of aging next semester. The program will call upon outside experts and will invite others from the community to explore with the college the potentialities and problems associated with aging.

These are examples of a new emphasis on community involvement at Morningside. "Colleges and universities," President Thompson said at his inauguration, "were established to encourage learning and research, to open up avenues of new thought and experimentation, and to provide leadership for bold thinking and creative idealism."

All this is better done hand-in-hand with the various other institutions of the community. The days when colleges and universities remained aloof from or were at swordpoint with their surroundings hopefully are gone forever — new partnerships are now emerging.
