Alumni Meetings ...

January 20 - Storm Lake, Iowa President Thompson was the speaker at the gathering of alums from the Storm Lake area. Dr. Thompson related his general plans and his enthusiasm for Morningside. Tom Watt ('59) was in charge of arrangements.

March 5 - Sioux Falls, South Dakota Again Dr. Thompson was the speaker for this gathering of area alumni. Planning for the meeting was handled by Bill Burggraaf ('60) and John Griffin ('34).

FUTURE MEETINGS ...

March 30 - Kailua, Oahu, Hawaii This meeting for Morningsiders of the Hawaiian Islands will probably be history when you read this. The meeting is planned in conjunction with the Morningside Concert Choir's tour of Hawaii. (See story on page 4)

April 2 - Denver, Colorado

April 15 - Waterloo, Iowa area

April 16 - Cedar Rapids, Iowa area

Members of the classes of 1965, 1960, 1955, 1950, 1945, 1940, 1935, 1930, 1925 and the Fifty Year Class of 1920 should make plans now to be on campus for reunion luncheons on Saturday noon, and the traditional Alumni Dinner, replete with Tribe of the Sioux Initiation Ceremony that evening. The Reunion Committee is working now to make this an eventful weekend, but it takes you to make it a success.

The Inauguration of THOMAS S. THOMPSON

APRIL 25, 1970

The beauty and dignity of the academic procession will be seen on the Morningside campus on April 25 when Dr. Thomas S. Thompson is inaugurated as the College's ninth president.

A full weekend of activities is being planned by an Inaugural Committee chaired by Dr. Raymond Nelson, chairman of the Humanities Division.

The highlight of the weekend will be the inaugural ceremony beginning at 2:30 on the afternoon of Saturday, April 25. The academic procession will form at the Jacobsen Computer Center and move across the campus to the Eppley Auditorium where the ceremony of investiture will take place.

Dr. Leon Hickman, chairman of Morningside's Board of Directors, will present the charter and read the charge—officially investing Dr. Thompson with the presidency of the college.

The inaugural address, titled "Stewardship for the Seventies," will be given by Dr. Thompson. Brief remarks will be presented by Charles Ellison ('58) of Sioux City, president of the Alumni Association; Dr. Russell Eidsmoe, representing the Morningside faculty; Bishop James S. Thomas, Bishop of Iowa for the United Methodist Church; Dr. Samuel L. Meyer, president of Ohio Northern University and representing Higher Education; Paul Berger, Mayor of Sioux City, and James Walker, president of the Morningside Student Senate.

One of Dr. Thompson's first official acts as president will be the conferring of an honorary doctorate upon Bishop Donald Tippett, retired Bishop of the California-Nevada District of the United Methodist Church. Bishop Tippett will close the inaugural ceremony.

Special music at the ceremony will be presented by the Morningside Concert Choir and Brass Ensemble.

The academic procession will be joined by an estimated 125 delegates of colleges, universities and learned societies. Dr. Clifford Bowman, associate professor of history and faculty member with longest service at Morningside, will be mace bearer in the procession. The mace, of native walnut, was made by Dr. Merton Green, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church of Sioux City. The mace, traditional in academic processions, will be used for the first time at Dr. Thompson's inauguration.

The first event of the Inaugural Weekend is set for the night of Friday, April 24, when a Fine Arts Festival will be held in Eppley Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. The Morningside choir and orchestra will be featured in a special musical program, and the Art Department will present a display in the Eppley galleries.

A reception, sponsored by the Morningside Alumni Association, will be held following Saturday's inaugural ceremony. Hours of the reception are 3:30 to 5 p.m. in the East Room of the Commons Student Center. Alumni Association board members who are in charge of the luncheon are Charles Ellison ('58), Mrs. Eugene Doran ('47), Mrs. Richard Morgan ('49), Mrs. William Lyle (ex '53), and Mrs. James Fowler ('53). All are from Sioux City.

A student reception for Dr. Thompson will be held at 5:30 on Saturday, also at the Commons. Students will enter the main dining room in small groups to meet with the President and to be served their evening meal.

Dr. Nelson, in announcing the schedule for the Inaugural Weekend, issued an invitation to all alumni and friends of the college to attend all events and to share in this special time in the life of the College.

Choir Tours Hawaii

Members of Morningside's Concert Choir spent their Easter vacation in the Hawaiian Islands. The choir's biennial concert tour took them to the islands of Oahu, Maui and Hawaii where they were scheduled to perform 11 concerts including an appearance in the famous Easter morning sunrise services of the Hawaii Council of Churches at the Punchbowl in Honolulu.

The Morningside choir's tour of Hawaii began March 26 and was to end April 6. The choir flew to Hawaii from San Francisco after singing their way to the west coast. Performances were scheduled in churches in Casper, Wyo., Rock Springs, Wyo., Salt Lake City, Carson City, Nev., and San Francisco.

A 45-member traveling choir roster was established because of bus space limitation, and auditions were held by director James Wood to determine the personnel who would make the trip. Another determining factor was the choir member's willingness to provide $200 toward the expenses involved in the extended tour.

Although the college provides a budget for the touring choir and the students paid their own air travel expenses, more funds were needed to assure lodging, meals and transportation in Hawaii. These funds were gained through church concerts in the Siouxland area both during the current academic year and the previous year. Free will offerings from some 30 church performances in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota swelled the choir's treasury and assured the necessary funds for the tour.

A Pied Piper lure for relaxing Morningside College students—the Wigwam Room in the campus Commons—has a dramatically colorful new attraction. It's a 40-foot-long mural painted by George W. Genszler, a member of the college's art staff. Genszler, who came to Morningside in 1968 from the University of Northern Iowa where he did his graduate study in ceramics and general art, labored 14 to 15 hours a day, seven days a week, for two months to produce the multi-colored mural. It has proved to be a conversation piece for collegians and visitors.

The artist was commissioned by the Morningside Commons Board of Control to do the mural. Typical of an artist, he was carried away by his work, and when he figured his "profits" he realized that his labor compensation was about five cents an hour. Genszler calls the mural an example of "super graphics." It boldly features the letters, numbers and symbols of a typewriter, in huge proportion. The artist playfully omitted one of the typewriter's punctuation marks; to date no student has detected the missing item. But he has let out the secret—it's the apostrophe.

The tour of Hawaii began with the choir's arrival in Honolulu on the afternoon of March 26. The United Methodist Church in Hawaii provided lodging at the Kailani Conference Center in the city of Kailua, across the island of Oahu from Honolulu. This camp was the choir's headquarters for their six days on Oahu during which they sang in the Easter sunrise service, five church services and three high school assemblies.

A meeting with alumni of Morningside residing in Hawaii was set for the evening of March 30. Alums were invited to have dinner with the choir, listen to the performance of a portion of the choir's repertoire, and chat with choir members about the College.

Two days were planned on the island of Maui where the choir was scheduled to sing for students of Maui Community College in the city of Kahului.

The final stop was the city of Hilo on the island of Hawaii where the choir was to present one of the programs in the concert series of the Hawaiian Concert Society. This concert was set for the night of April 3, to be followed by a two-day auto tour of the island prior to the return flight to San Francisco.

Dr. Wood, the choir's director for the past twelve years, was accompanied by Mrs. Wood on the tour. Alan Anderson, editor of the Morningsider, Mrs. Anderson and their two sons also joined the tour.

Dedication of Jacobsen Computer Center

Formal dedication of the Jacobsen Computer Center has been set for April 7. A ceremony in the center at two o'clock in the afternoon will mark the official dedication. Dr. Leon Hickman, chairman of Morningside's Board of Directors, president Thomas S. Thompson, and longtime board member Harold Winter will participate in the ceremony.

A luncheon at the College Commons will precede the dedication ceremony, and an open house to which all alumni are invited is set for the hours of 2:30 to 5:00 p.m. on the 7th.

The Jacobsen Computer Center, an addition to the Jones Hall of Science, was made possible by the philanthropy of Harold A. Jacobsen, a Sioux City industrialist and longtime friend of the College. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen will be given special recognition at the noon luncheon and program.

SPORTS RECAP

by George Ellis, Morningside Sports Information Director

A winning basketball season, some outstanding wrestling, NCAA Coach of the Year award to a Morningside Coach, and the expectation of strong track and baseball teams highlight the 1969-70 winter sports period just concluding.

Basketball

For the first season since 1963-64, Morningside cagers finished on the long end of a basketball record and it was accomplished by an unheralded team that put together fine displays of team play game after game.

The outlook was not very optimistic to start the season, but the surprising Chiefs put together a three game winning streak in December and forged into the finals of the annual North Central Conference Holiday Tournament. The Morningsiders accomplished it with a 75-72 win over Augustana before punishing the University of North Dakota by a 91-74 count in the semi-finals.

South Dakota State University, the eventual North Central Conference Champions and 9th-ranked team in the nation, stopped the Chiefs in the Championship game by a 74-56 margin.

The Chiefs had a 7-8 mark entering the home stretch and put on a drive that was a heart-stopper. Led by seniors Steve Garrison (6-4), Dan Smith (6-4), Mike White (6-1), and Tom Rosen (6-4), the Chiefs captured five of six contests including a 58-43 N.A.I.A. District 15 playoff victory over William Penn. That win gave them the right to play Wartburg College for a berth in the N.A.I.A. national tournament in Kansas City. After playing five games in six days, Morningside fell to Wartburg by a 66-55 margin on the Knights' court.

It ended a most successful season for the Morningsiders. The Chiefs finished with a 12-11 record. Seven seniors wound up their careers as Morningsiders and two of them, Dan Smith and Steve Garrison, finished with over 700 points in their careers and spots among the top 10 in Morningside scoring.

The season featured several key victories. The Chiefs stopped the University of South Dakota 75-74 in Allee Gym. The Coyotes were the pre-season favorites in the NCC and finished 2nd. The Men of the "M" also captured three wins over the University of North Dakota. The Chiefs' 79-78 win over the Sioux in Grand Forks was the first Morningside victory in the North Dakota Gym since 1951.

CHUCK OBYE

Morningside's Head Basketball Coach, Chuck Obye, has been named District 5 NCAA College Division Coach of the Year.

The honor was given to Obye by district five of the National Association of Basketball Coaches. The district includes Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Nebraska. Kent Finanger, basketball coach at Luther College in Decorah and chairman of the association, announced the decision of a poll of member coaches.

In his 13th season at Morningside, Obye is the dean of the North Central Conference coaches. His 1959 Morningside basketball team advanced to the Iowa Championship of the NAIA and then moved to the national tournament in Kansas City. Before coming to Morningside, Obye was the head basketball coach at Wayne State College in Nebraska for eight seasons.

Obye is a 1946 graduate of Morningside and a varsity letter-winner in football, basketball, and track. He was captain of the 1943 Maroon Chiefs basketball team. Coach Obye earned his Masters degree from the State University of Iowa.

Track

New Head Coach Leo Hupke, a Morningside quarterback in the early 60's, has a bright outlook for the 1970 spring season.

With the indoor track season just completed, the Chiefs could become contenders for the first division in the NCC. High jumper Bill Kirchwehm smashed records during the indoor season. Kirchwehm set a school record and tied the Drake Fieldhouse record with a leap of 6-8 in February. He repeated the effort in March by setting the NCC Indoor record along with Mike Hazelhoff of Mankato State, both going 6-8.

Sprinters Dick Keith and Bill Asprey both performed well and each had times of 6.4 in the 60-yard dash. Chuck Robbins and Mickey Everett both placed in the hurdle events in the NCC track meet and Steve Jones looked strong with a 14-6 effort in the pole vault.

Baseball

Eleven lettermen head the 1970 Morningside baseball team. The squad returns the entire infield, one outfielder, and four pitchers from last season.

A new group of young pitchers coupled with the powerful hitting team of last season that returns intact should make the Chiefs one of the top contenders for the NCC title this spring.

Coach Don Protexter begins his 15th season with a southern jaunt into Kansas and Oklahoma in late March before opening a rugged 21-game league slate the first weekend in April.

Wrestling

Coach Arnie Brandt's matmen had a 4-8 dual meet record after three straight winning seasons. It was a rebuilding season with only three seniors on the roster.

Junior Don Eggenburg advanced into the top 10 in victories with an outstanding 20-11 record. Eggenburg was the kingpin of the Morningside team and a leader in almost every department. Seniors Bob Bason (134), Bill Moeller (158) and Les Padget (Hwt) had good years and promise for the future came from sophomores and freshmen headed by 126-pounder Rick Nuss (14-9).

The Chiefs finished 6th in the rugged North Central Conference meet won by newcomer Mankato State.

THE BLACK STUDENT AT

Black students at Morningside are not happy about their college experience. The Afro-American Society, which includes most campus blacks as members, recently made a series of proposals designed to partially remedy their discontent. They are asking that Morningside hire black counsellors and professors, that black students be employed in admissions counselling, that black studies and perspectives be incorporated to a greater extent in our curriculum, and that a portion of campus space be designated as a Black Culture center. How should these requests be interpreted? Would it be reasonable to act on them?

One response, which probably represents the viewpoint of many whites, would reject such requests. "Black students are unhappy everywhere. There is nothing that Morningside can do about it. Morningside was integrated long ago. Read our statement of aims and regulations: you will find nothing discriminatory—otherwise we would lose our federal funds." In other words things are fine. We find out by reading our own publications.

As for the proposals, "Aren't they going completely in the wrong direction? Aren't we going back to a segregationist approach if we hire people because of their color, if we teach subjects because of their racial orientation, if we allow special facilities which encourage Negroes to isolate themselves? Integration is the ideal, isn't it? If they don't like it here, why don't they go somewhere else?"

Someone who takes this approach might be nostalgic about "the good Negro" that he knew in the old days. I can recall working (during my college years) with a garbage man named Smoky. Smoky got along well with his white co-workers. He would even perform a soft shoe and song routine on request which everyone enjoyed. He understood that he should begin his act when whites started clapping their hands.

Smoky seemed to possess the "patience and humor" which is so conspicuously absent in the current generation of black students. Perhaps Morningside should try to recruit Negroes like Smoky instead of the ones who don't seem satisfied with the way things are now.

In reply to this line of thinking, we must recognize that looking for Smokies in the 1970's will be futile—for reasons which are obvious to black students but much less obvious to most whites. Smoky had "good relations" with whites precisely because he surrendered his own identity as a person and allowed himself to be manipulated by whites. This was his way of surviving in spite of the high cost in dignity and pride.

Whites would never demean themselves in this fashion before blacks unless the whites themselves were an oppressed minority. Young blacks today can understand why the Smokies of another generation failed to demand the sort of respect for individuality which is more routinely granted to whites. But they are determined that they will participate in the future society on terms which are partially or largely determined by themselves.

At this point in history they can accept their blackness, and they refuse to be redefined as whites before they fully participate in American society. They will tell you that Negro culture is different. They won't pretend that they are really the same as white people, but they do not want to allow the structure of justice and opportunity to be retained in a twisted form which forces the minority group members automatically to accept inferior positions in society.

These ideas are rather abstract—what do they have to do with Morningside? Blacks are asking in their proposals for institutional commitments and actions which will allow them to develop the autonomy which the Smokies of another generation never developed. They are asking for academic and counselling personnel who understand the experience of being black in a basically white culture, who understand the snubs and the hate calls.

They are anxious to see more black students so that they don't feel so lonely in a social atmosphere which is largely indifferent to their special interests. They are interested in having a place to go where they do not have to cope with constant expressions of rejection—the indifferent glance, the sneer, the cold refusal to acknowledge the presence of the other person. They are also seeking a place in which they can meet whites as equals, and acquaint whites with the black world which they fear and fail to comprehend. They are asking in effect for a human environment, satisfying basic human needs for acceptance and support—needs which are not being met by our college staff, faculty and student body.

As Morningside attempts to understand its proper role in relationship to the black student, it has some hard questions to ask of itself. Exploring answers to them will frequently take us beyond issues posed by the dissatisfactions of blacks. Perhaps the limitations which blacks claim to see are symptomatic of our insensitivities in dealing with all of our students, regardless of their color.

We might, for example, ask why so few Indians have ever chosen to come to Morningside. Could it be that Indians are repelled by the caricature image of themselves which we present on the cups we drink from in the Wigwam; How

by Dr. John Lawrence

Editor's note . . .

Dr. John Lawrence's article on the problems of minority group students grew out of a speech he presented to the Sioux City chapter of the American Association of University Professors. Dr. Lawrence is an associate professor of philosophy at Morningside and has been a member of the faculty since 1966. His B.A. was received at Stanford University, his Master's at Princeton University and his Ph.D. at Texas University. Dr. Lawrence's graduate work was taken under a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. As faculty advisor for Morningside's Afro-American Society, Dr. Lawrence is particularly well qualified to write this Morningsider article.

would an Indian feel about the tribal organization of our incoming freshmen or the initiation into the "tribe of Sioux" for our graduating seniors? Is the Indian just a legendary piece of local color for us, or do we genuinely respect the Indian and hold out our hand to bring him into the institution as a dignified equal?

Moving to broader issues, we must ask ourselves what future we have if we cannot meet the most elementary needs of groups which have long awaited the opportunity? It is instructive to note that many, if not most, of our white dropouts at Morningside come from families in which they are the first generation to attend college. Was it simply that they failed us, or did we in some measure fail them?

I am optimistic about the ability of Morningside to cope with these questions. I believe that prodding by concerned students (black and white), faculty and administration is moving us toward a better understanding of ourselves and our potential for creating a pluralistic college community in which we frankly acknowledge differences and constructively learn from them. There is already some awareness that unless we meet this challenge in the 1970's, we will be rejected by those concerned students who wish the college to provide a laboratory in which they familiarize themselves directly with the most urgent problems facing our civilization. Without such students, we will invalidate any claim that we make to be an excellent liberal arts institution.

With continuing leadership of the sort that has begun to emerge at Morningside under President Thompson and Student Body President James Walker, we will perhaps someday find it hard to understand how there ever could have been problems at Morningside which required so much of our patience and understanding.

A Black Cultural Center is scheduled for completion at Morningside during the spring vacation. Voted by the Board of Control of the Commons Student Center and given further support by a vote of confidence of the Student Senate, the center will be a part of the remodelling of the television lounge in the Commons. One half of the lounge will be made into a seminar room and the other half will become the Black Cultural Center.

James Walker, president of the Student Council, said that the purpose of the center is to educate all students in the areas of Black culture and art. "The purpose is not to create a meeting place for Blacks only," Walker said, "but rather to provide a setting where all students can share in the Black experience."

A committee made up of members of the Commons Board of Control, the Student Senate and interested Black students will meet periodically and plan displays for the cultural center. These displays will feature the arts and literature of other minority groups, such as the American Indian.

The Commons remodelling does not mean the end of the television lounge. The classroom in the Commons basement will be carpeted and remodelled for use as a lounge. Costs of the project are being borne by student funds under the control of the Commons Board of Control and the Student Senate.

ALUMNUS PROFILE . . .

By BOB HENTGES
Staff Writer, Sioux City Journal

Eighteen years ago the Sioux City Journal ran an interview with a young Sioux Cityan, William D. Wolle, who was about to enter the U.S. Diplomatic Service, quoting him as saying, "I'm going in without a top hat, spats or walking stick."

Mr. Wolle still doesn't possess those tools of the diplomatic career, but he has acquired a Norwegian wife, two cosmopolitan children and an enviable record earned in service throughout the Mideast, Europe and Washington.

The tall and handsome counselor of embassy at the American Embassy in Kuwait—looking a good 10 years younger than his 41 years—and his family recently visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wolle of Sioux City, after spending the last year and a half in Kuwait. They returned in early March for another 18 months or so in Kuwait.

Wolle is a 1945 graduate of Central High School and a 1949 graduate of Morningside College. He entered the Diplomatic Service in 1951 after earning a Master's Degree in international affairs at Columbia University. Since then he has spent three years in Baghdad, two years in Manchester, a year in Beirut, a year in Aden, three years in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, six years with the State Department in Washington and a year and a half in Kuwait.

Kuwait is the name of the capital city (400,000 persons) and the country (700,000 persons). It is an oil-rich nation on the Persian Gulf, bordering on Saudi Arabia and Iraq. Its ruler is the Shaikh Sabah al-Salin Sabah, a member of the Sabah family which has held power for 200 years. The amir is assisted by a cabinet and an elected parliament.

"Life in Kuwait is very comfortable," says Wolle, "except for the extreme heat seven months of the year." His family enjoys all the conveniences of modern living and his daughter, Laila, 13, and son, William, 9, attend an American school along with 570 youngsters of 43 different nationalities. One of the teachers is Miss Beverly McQuegg, a 1967 graduate of Morningside.

DR. IRA N. GABRIELSON, president of the Wildlife Management Institute, received an additional honor when a building was named for him at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center at Laurel, Md. The building, housing the center's migratory bird populations station, was named the Ira N. Gabrielson Laboratory.

1917

MR. and MRS. GEORGE B. DUTTON observed their 50th wedding anniversary on Dec. 24, 1969. Mrs. Dutton is a 1916 graduate of Morningside. Mrs. Dutton, the former Kate Leazer, writes that "we are both in good health and active, although retired."

1925

ALICE ROBBINS WICKENS is a professor in education at Norfolk State College in Norfolk, Va. She received a Ph.D. degree in 1963 from the University of Chicago, where she also earned her master's degree. Both degrees were in speech pathology and reading.

1926

MRS. O. B. ROGERS, the former Margaret Spencer, wrote a history of Newell, Iowa, based on information gleaned from the Newell Mirrors published since 1871. Her book, titled "The Newell Heritage," has had a circulation of more than 1,000 copies.

1929

RUSSELL HAMMOND is serving as associate dean of the College of Education at the University of Wyoming. In addition, he is director of the Research Center for the College of Education. Mr. Hammond's address is 816 S. 17th Street, Laramie, Wyo., 82070.

1930

GLADYS TIMM UHL is the author of an article titled "Singing Helps Children Learn How to Read" which appeared in the December issue of the Music Educators Journal. Mrs. Uhl resides at 4009 Madrona Road, Riverside, Calif.

1931

NEUMEN L. GRUNSTAD and Mr. Grunstad are the parents of two sons now serving in the United States Army (Air Force) ground force. Capt. Norman L. Grunstad, a graduate of West Point, served two years in Vietnam and returned from that tour of duty last July. He now is attending school at Fort Benning, Ga. Sgt. Jerome A. Grunstad, the couple's younger son, enlisted for four years in the Army Air Force, security wing, and at present is stationed in Japan. Mrs. Grunstad is substitute teaching in several high schools in the Ortonville, Minn., area where the Grunstads reside at 518 Dassel Ave.

D. GEORGE DAVIES and his wife, the former NEMA WESNER (1936), are serving the United Methodist Church under the leadership of the Department of Finance and Field Service, National Division of the Board of Missions. Most of the year the couple travels over the United States counseling and directing stewardship programs in local churches. Their home is on Martha's Vineyard, Oak Bluffs, Mass., and their headquarters is 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N.Y., 10027.

1936

DR. EVERETT TIMM of the music faculty of Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, has returned from a meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music where he was elected national treasurer. Mrs. Timm is teaching flute at LSU and playing with the faculty quintet. Their elder son, Gary, is in graduate school at the University of Minnesota where he is a candidate for a Ph.D. in chemistry. Their younger son, Larry, is a junior at LSU, majoring in music.

1940

WALT L. HURD and Mrs. Hurd recently returned from an extensive Pacific trip. The Hurds spent a week in Tokyo attending the International Conference on Quality Control. Mr. Hurd presented a paper at this meeting and was a session chairman. The following week was spent in Manila working with Philippine Air Lines and the Philippine Society for Quality Control. The final week of the Hurds' trip was in Australia, where Mr. Hurd was the keynote speaker of a national conference for quality control in Melbourne. The Hurds reside in Sunnyvale, Calif., where Walt is a division manager for the Lockheed Missiles & Space Co.

1941

BETTY (SCHUNCK) BARTLETT has returned to Iowa after 25 years in the East, her husband's transfer to Davenport, Iowa, bringing that about. He now is manager of the Davenport Water Co. The Bartletts' elder son, Marc, is serving with the 1st Air Cavalry in Vietnam, and their younger son, Allan, is majoring in engineering at the University of Maine. The Bartletts' Davenport address is 2558 E. Central Park Ave.

1943

CLARENCE L. VER STEEG received a high honor when the Northwestern University library faculty lounge was named for him. Holder of a B.A. degree from Morningside and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University, Ver Steeg has been a member of the Northwestern history department faculty since 1950. In 1959-60 he was a visiting professor at Harvard University. Dr. Ver Steeg holds numerous academic memberships and honors. He also is a distinguished author. He is a member of the panel of the National Endowment for Humanities, and in 1967-68 was a visiting member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J.

DR. FRANCIS L. BROCKMAN is Secretary of Cultivation of the United Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief. In this position he helps interpret the relief and rehabilitation program of the Methodist Church, currently at work in more than 40 countries overseas. Funds are expended for relief of human suffering without regard for race, color or creed. Dr. Brockman resides at 130 Manhattan Ave., New York City, N.Y., 10025.

JEAN RUNGE recently returned to Orlando, Fla., after serving 14½ months in VISTA. She received her training in Baltimore and worked for VISTA in West Virginia, serving in after-care work for the state department of mental health. Her address is 3700 E. Conway Road, Apt. V-6, Orlando, Fla.

DAVID COX is executive secretary of the Council of Churches at Buffalo, N.Y., and Erie County. They have five sons—David W., a sophomore at Southern Methodist University; Andy, a freshman at Colgate University, and Tony, Lindsay and Jefferson, all at home. Editor's note . . .

The story reproduced below points up the changes that have taken place in student rights over the years. In the early 1900's when this story appeared in the Sioux City Journal, male students did not have the right to view female students in their basketball uniforms.

What would Miss Ferguson have thought of today's miniskirts?

FORBID NAUGHTY MEN TO SEE GIRLS AT BASKETBALL

Morningside College Chappies Expelled From Vicinity of Girls' Games.

NOT TO SEE TRACK MEN

Miss Agnes Ferguson, dean of women, of Morningside, last night expelled several men of the institution from the field house where they were watching the girls play basketball, and hereafter none of the male members of the school will be allowed to witness the games without a written permit from Miss Ferguson. The permits are granted especially that reporters for the city papers and the college paper may write up the games. All others will be barred. Miss Ferguson also intends to prohibit the girls from watching the track workouts next spring from the bleachers.

Some of the faculty men are smiling behind their faces, but the dean of women thus far has not been balked in the enforcement of her edict.

The men are indignant, and declare that the city reporters should not receive more partiality than the rest of the men. They also say that the presence of the co-eds on the bleachers inspires them to greater deeds of valor.

Girls Profess a Willingness to Have Men Spectators of Their Games.

MAY APPEAL TO FACULTY and for that reason they should be left to watch the races.

Some discussion has been carried on among members of the faculty as to whether the men of the school will be allowed into the tournament. Last night the girls put it to a vote and the decision was unanimous that men should be allowed to see the games. If the dean still objects, the girls will take up the case with the faculty. Much excitement reigns at the college over the outcome of the disagreement.

Many of the young men are thoroughly angry that they should be forbidden a sight of their girl friends in easy attire. They haven't had such a privilege in ages, and now to have it suddenly taken away from before their eyes is too much.

"How is a fellow ever going to know whether she is real or padding, if we can't even see our best girl in a gym suit," grumbled a spokesman, dismally.
