ALUMNI

Greetings, Morningsiders:

Our Alma Mater stands at the threshold of a new era. Morningside is going places! With the largest enrollment in its history; with a new science building under construction; with additional buildings being planned; and a spirit never before equaled on the campus, a true Homecoming awaits all old grads and ex-students who return October 18, 19 and 20.

On behalf of the Alumni, I want to invite and welcome all Morningsiders to the Homecoming festivities this year. Plan now to participate in the Alumni activities; mingle with the students; attend the football game, and relive a few hours of your own college days. You, too, will absorb some of the enthusiasm and spirit that prevails at Morningside.

New Science Building Ready by Fall of '47

Morningside college will have its new science hall completed and ready for occupation by September of next year, according to a statement by Dr. Roadman. The $175,000 building contract has been let to the R. M. Coomer Construction company, and excavation started. The job will be unavoidably delayed because no structural steel will be available until February.

The new building is being raised between the Church and the Barn. Upon completion it will house the physics, chemistry and biology departments on three separate floors, and an annex will house the department of home economics. The vacancies in Main hall, attendant upon the science center reorganization, will be converted into classrooms.

In the ground breaking ceremony college and civic leaders took part. The first shovelful of dirt was turned by David W. Stewart, president of the college board of trustees. Next the shovel was handed to Prof. James Coss representing the science faculty of the college; Byron Sifford, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Harold Bollman, '35, president of the alumni association; Tom Green, representing the college student body, and Dr. Earl A. Roadman, college president.

Each was introduced by Ernest Raun, '28, chairman of the board of trustees building committee, who presided during the ceremony, and each spoke briefly before turning a shovel of dirt.

The ceremony was opened by a prayer of ground consecration by Dr. Frank G. Bean. A large audience of students, alumni, faculty and friends formed a semi-circle about the building site during the ceremony.

"Morningside college stands with Sioux City and the great northwest at an historic moment," Dr. Roadman said in a talk which concluded the event. "The agricultural and political influences are moving forward.

"The increase of agricultural production to aid in feeding the world, and the expansive and promising developments of the Missouri river navigation projects furnish a preview of a future in this area which is breathtaking.

"Morningside college stands today with her religious foundations and her educational traditions building a new science building to move with the religious, scientific, educational and political efforts toward a new land of promise."

"This building will, we hope, mark only a beginning of advance. Morningside college also needs to build immediately a new fieldhouse gymnasium and men's dormitory. In the early tomorrow a library and a fine arts building also will be needed.

"With appreciation to the northwest Iowa conference of the Methodist church, to Sioux City and to alumni, faculty, board of trustee members and friends everywhere, Morningside college proceeds with her tasks."

Members of the building committee, in addition to Mr. Raun, are Mrs. E. N. Raun, Rev. John C. Butchman, Charles Van Eaton, R. F. Roach, W. C. Wolle, Dr. Ray J. Harrington and Dr. M. E. Graber.

Morningsiders Perform at Bandshell

Active, busy and without regard for titles is Miss Lillian Dimmitt, whose home today is in her classroom and to whom friends, college ideals and traditions are of first importance.

Women of Achievement

Honored among the "Women of Achievement" who have been featured in the Sioux City Sunday Journal the past summer, are two Morningsiders: Dean Emeritus Lillian E. Dimmitt and Miss Mary Treglia, '32, executive secretary of the Community House.

In her article which pays tribute to Miss Dimmitt as a veteran educator, Editha K. Webster comments: "College life—that at Morningside college, especially—Miss Dimmitt knows thoroughly. The building of its ideals and the establishment of traditions are its most important phases of growth, she will tell you crisply and authoritative­ly. Morningside college, she had seen grow physically, from one building and an abandoned excavation with only a cornerstone to denote its purpose; educationally, to a school meriting accreditments, scholarships and fellowships from institutions high in the brackets of learning, and spiritually, with ideals and traditions part of the yearly living of class after class of successful graduates.

"A quarter of a century ago Miss Dimmitt built her home. It is a distinguished house, where college classes in classical languages come for instruction under a woman whose activities laugh at the approach of an 80th birthday anniversary, wholly unimportant in her scheme of reck­oning life. Miss Dimmitt has traveled extensively, spent one year in study in Europe, and for 10 years prior to the first world war conducted travel parties there.

She returned to Europe later and can tell exciting stories of postwar espionage activities that were a travel menace. Travel, Miss Dimmitt confesses, is her hobby. 'Friends,' she adds, 'are more important, however, than places.'

Miss Dimmitt's is not a personality to be confused with college degrees, internationally known societies and clubs if you are in conversation with her. When the fire burns low of an autumn evening in her home and your vigorous, white haired hostess stoops to poke a log or to add another, one just sits back and waits for sprightly conversation to be renewed.'

Of Mary and her work, Mrs. Webster writes: "After graduating from Morningside, Mary took graduate study at the New York School of Social Work on Ellis Island and did field work for United Charities. On her return to Sioux City she became supervisor of Booker T. Washington Community center and was consultant for Sioux City child care centers. After taking special training in New York and at the University of Minnesota, she was made director of the Community House in January, 1930, a position she since has held. The new building at Sixth and Morgan streets grew from $700 and a prayer. Its present size, beauty and convenience attest the worthiness of the prayer and the perseverance of Mary.

"Miss Treglia's "customers" range in age from 2 weeks to 86 years, and their problems from baby formulas to burials. In her neat small office these are minimized and often cease to exist. "People feel friendliness," Mary commented, discussing differences of background and language that sometimes create complications.

"Mary is admittedly proud of the flood control legislation, accomplished after 200 meetings at Community house, which banished that horror from the lives of her neighbors. The Community house area is one of the lowest in juvenile delinquency.

"Education, honors and activities of Miss Treglia are listed in three biographical collections, Who's Who in Iowa, Midwest's Who's Who and American Women's Who's Who. Miss Treglia is president of the National Civic league of Italian peoples, a past president of the Iowa chapter of the American Association of Social Workers and of the Sioux City Social Workers club of Sioux City, of Compass club and of Atrusa club.

"Mary makes light of the achievements, of the labors, and of political oppositions that sometimes threaten her 'people.' But their problems are important and their loy­alties are precious as a neat sampler on her wall attests. It reads, 'Friends make life worth living.' One of her friends at the Community house, summed it all up, quite simply, in sure, low spoken words: 'She is our meat; our bread, our water. She is our all.'

Charlotte Tagg Wins Praise

The Indiana Daily Student, published at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., carried an article by Irving Sablosky praising the work of Charlotte Tagg, ex '46, a graduate from the university in June. To quote Mr. Sablosky:

"Charlotte Tagg, 'cellist, displayed qualities of musicianship and technique in her performance last night at Recital hall superior to the highest criteria which might be set for a recital by a graduating senior. "She played a program which omitted no artistic difficulties, technical or musical; and she surmounted those difficulties with an ease and artistry smacking of the professional."

Included on her program were the Beethoven Sonata in C Major, Opus 102, No. 1, Haydn-Piatti Sonatas in C, Faure "Elegie," and Concerto in B Minor by Adrien Servais. She was accompanied by Katherine Clayton, former instructor at the conservatory.

Charlotte is teaching 'cello at Shorter College, Rome, Georgia, this year. As head of a newly organized 'cello department, she also instructs in music theory and plays in the faculty trio.
Additions to the Faculty

During the war years, the faculty at Morningside, as at every college in the nation, carried heavy teaching loads, often teaching courses for instructors who were serving with the armed forces as well as their own, and taking on extra courses for the army unit stationed at the college. With the opening of the 1946 fall semester, Morningside anticipates the largest enrollment in her history and accordingly has added 27 new members to its faculty, bringing the number on the staff to 65.

Of these new faculty members, Dr. Roy M. Chatters will head the department of biology. Prior to his appointment, Dr. Chatters has been employed in bio-chemical research by the Chevrolet Motor company and by commercial chemical companies. Dr. Chatters received his A. B. degree from Hope college, Holland, Mich., his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Richard Luther Flowers, jr., of Ruston, La., a former information and education officer in the European theater of operations, has been named head of the speech and dramatics department, with the title of professor of speech. Before the war he served as speech instructor at MacMurray college in Illinois, at Texas Technological college and at Louisiana Polytechnic institute at Ruston. Mr. Flowers was sound technician at the University of Texas, where he studied phases of radio pertaining to education and produced educational radio programs. He studied methods of production under the educational director of the Columbia Broadcasting system in New York, and has engaged in commercial promotion and radio work. Mr. Flowers was graduated from North Texas State Teachers college at Denton in 1935, and received his master's degree in 1939 at Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge.

Dr. Florence Cole, new head of the women's physical education department, received a B. A. degree from Grinnell College, Grinnell, la., an M. A. from Columbia University and Ed. D. from New York University in New York City. She has taught physical education at Grinnell College, Tennessee State College, Johnson City, Tenn., and at the City College of New York, New York City. Her experience includes work as counsellor for problem children at Hull House, Chicago; director of Camp Niangua for Girls, Niangua, Mo.; as orthopedic clinic assistant in St. Luke's Hospital, New York City.

The new head of the mathematics department is Dr. Glenn R. Bushyager, who received his B. S. degree from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., graduating with magna cum laude, and his M. A. from Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa., where he was elected to Phi Kappa Phi. He did graduate work at State College and University of Michigan.

His teaching experience included one year as graduate assistant in Physics at Allegheny College, six years as instructor in mathematics at Penn State, University of Pittsburgh and at the University of Detroit. Prior to coming to Morningside, Dr. Bushyager was head of the mathematics department at Lawrence Institute of Technology in Detroit for fourteen years.

Men Outnumber Women

Believe it or not—the men students this year will outnumber the women about two to one. The normal ratio is ordinarily one to one. About 300 of the 475 men in the freshman class are veterans. Nearly all the upperclassmen are veterans, about 100 of whom are married.

FOOTBALL SEASON UNDERWAY

The Morningside Maroons began football practice at Bass field September 2, under the guidance of Head Coach Les Davis and Line Coach Al Buckingham, with about 60 men checking out football equipment. The 1946 Morningside football schedule is probably the toughest in the North Central conference, as the Maroons play all six conference games in succession. Morningside is one of only two teams to schedule every conference foe in one season.

Coach Davis announced that while all practice sessions will be held on Bass field the five home games slated for the Maroons this fall will be played at Public Schools stadium in Morningside. “We play a tough schedule this year and I don’t want to convey over-optimism or pessimism. There is lots of rebuilding to do to get ready for the tough grind ahead,” Davis commented.

The nine lettermen who have reported are: Gene Asprey, Holstein, Ia., regular quarterback on the 1942 team; Clair Blair, Sioux City, regular guard in 1942; Roy Haenfler, Avon, S. D., guard in 1942; Royce Hughes, Pierre, S. D., regular tackle last year. Freshman letter winners in 1942 were: Howard Peterson, Sioux City, regular tackle in 1942; Julius Shurensky, Sioux City, regular end in 1942; Gene Stover, Sioux City, center in 1941, and Fred Warner, Onawa, Ia., winner of the city basketball scholarship and regular guard last year. Freshman letter winners and new candidates make up the remainder of the squad, which should be one of the most powerful in the history of the school.

Assembling as backfield coach is Leo Ehrhorn, East High, principal of Leeds, in 1926 from Morningside. He served as Alumni president in 1944-45. His many friends are happy to welcome him to Morningside and wish him success at East High.
